The act centered on Warren's new PAC

Everyone at Warren was Caught in the Act. After being crowded in and having to go out of our way for more than two years as a result of Performing Arts Center construction, the beautiful facility finally opened and shot us all into center stage.

During the events of opening week at the PAC, students and community members alike got to tour the Esch Grand Auditorium, the Studio Theater and Hall of Fame. No one doubted that the Act was first class.

But for Warren, being Caught in the Act of succeeding was nothing new. Whether it was the Gold Brigade winning their first contest, the Speech or Debate teams bringing home ribbons, or the football, cross country and volleyball teams capturing County Crowns, Warriors were used to being stars.

There were time too when students and staff were Caught in the Act of caring, as the 1986 shutdown of Western Electric, where so many parents work, was announced. Community concern was also evident during the "Chemical People" viewing and PAC panels.

A character who was always being Caught in the Act of antics was our Warren Chicken, who kept our spirits high and his tail wagging. It started out to be quite a year, as we were all Caught in the Act.

During the Grand Opening of the Warren Performing Arts Center, members of music groups perform the finale to the production which was presented to all students as well as to the community.

Gold Brigade member junior Kristi Koelliker plays during a pep session. The Band was proud of their first First Place finish after many runner-up placings.

After the Powder Puff football game, seniors Chuck Hartman, Dawn Ballard, Julie Young and Tim Slicis celebrate their team's victory.

T.V. and Broadway star Shelley Berman laughs during an interview with the media. He was the Opening Night act for the PAC with his one man show.

Who's Chicken? Not our Warren Chicken, as he takes on foes and crowds alike to build spirit. He was even seen putting the hex on officials.

Before starting to dissect their worm, sophomores Chelise Martin and Shanell Martin study the diagram of the earthworm in Biology class.

Madrigal king Russell Watson and queen Jo Chappel, seniors, host the traditional dinner which was held for the first time in the PAC Hall of Fame.

During the fall performance of "Voices of the High School," senior Mike Melloh discusses his point with senior Brent Anderson.

In Washington, D.C. Principal Ernest Medcalfe accepts the Award for Excellence in Education of Secretary of Education H. T. Bell.

Class-y act moves to 'big time' D.C. billing

Beginning with the days when we were in grade school, we were always taught that nothing is easy. Even being one of the top 60 schools in the nation wasn't easy. Sometimes being Caught in the Act meant having to take criticism from other school systems. In February the Superintendent of Indianapolis Public Schools stated in a column in the Indianapolis Star that he felt the judging of the top schools was unfair. However, despite what James A. Adams felt, the Act went on. We lived up to everything everyone said we were and more.

We led other schools by having one of the best high school blood drives. We sent 120 letters to marines stationed in Beruit and Grenada. We even survived the resignation of our superintendent of seven years, Dr. Donn V. Kaupke.

After an increase in school fights, Warren even bounced back and handled that touchy situation with a first class act that included tighter rules and more severe punishments for those caught fighting. It seemed as though even some of those circumstances that were tough to handle were all a part of learning and going to school. What really put us into the center of attention was the way we handled those touchy situations - first class all the way.

This proved that it wasn't just all of the things that unified us as one school, it was also the small and large differences that divided us that thrust us into the enter of attention. That was most evident when 250 students showed up to cheer at the Boys' Beauty Contest. It was also evident when fans of every group supported the winning seasons of our champion teams. We recovered from some of the problems resulting from our first year of desegregation. "They" became "us." And everyone was Caught in the Act.

Firing up students at a pep session, varsity cheerleaders pyramid in honor of the fall sports teams.

All had a fair share of the center stage

Second semester came and we had not changed our ways. We could not seem to remove ourselves from the spotlight. The girls' basketball team gained momentum in their drive toward a State Championship, and the wrestlers were ranked and almost certain to win that crown. The boys' swim team had its best season ever and was Caught in the Act of beating North Central and winning the North Central Relays.

Students started counting the days until spring break and graduation. Seniors seemed to count louder and faster than anyone, and in their enthusiasm, some found disfavor when they were Caught in the Act of displaying inappropriate signs in inappropriate places.

Juniors Freddie Bell and Mark Kelso thrilled the winter pep session with their break dance performance. But many others were Caught too as they "breakdanced" their way through the halls, or nervously auditioned for "Brigadoon."

Faculty members were in the spotlight too. Mrs. Linda Bayne, science teacher, was there when she won the Conservation Educator of the Year award. In fact, the whole faculty was the focus of attention when citizens questioned the quality of American education and the issue of merit pay for teachers.

From the beginning when we packed away our summer clothes and got back into the act, to the very end when graduating seniors were leaving the scene, the probing spot searched us out.

Cuddly Winnie the Pooh(Tracey Fogelman) holds a honey of a discussion with other residents of the 100-acre wood in "The House at Pooh Corner."

Getting the Act together is first step

Hisses and boos came from the "peanut galley" when the news was announced that as a result of new state laws, students would be attending a longer school day next year. In February, the administration was busy trying to get their Act together as to whether there would be six or seven periods in our school day. With the six period day there might not be any more pep sessions or days off for State Championships, or club meeting, but the seven period day would see teachers teaching more classes.

The Cabbage Patch dolls which were so rare during Christmas appeared on Stuffed Animal day along with their friends the Care Bears and other assorted fuzzy friends. Kids were watching the Winter Olympics and the new T.V. station WPDS, Channel 59. Rising Sun and British Union Jack shirts were the fad and in the midst of all the trends, fads and fashions, the School Board was searching for a new superintendent and the Warren Education Association complained that they were being left out of the process of making any of the important decisions on the Board table this important year. Getting the act together was the first step of being Caught in the Act.

Caught in the Act

The Act went on even after the 2:40 bell rang. Life outside the classroom was more than just doing homework. The traditions lived on in Homecoming, the musical "Brigadoon," and even Spirit Week. The Act included so much more too. It was going out for pizza after ballgames. It was watching Brent Anderson become the beauty queen of the Boys' Beauty Contest. It was the orchestra trips and the Cancun, Mexico trips with Mrs. Beth Wolff.

Whether it was just going on a routine Friday night date with friends or singing in a school musical, Student Life was really Caught in the Act.

Signing yearbooks was what many students who attended the Homecoming Dance did while not dancing. The 1983 Wigwam with its theme of "Not Just Showing Off" was the center of attraction.

A combined effort of all the choirs adds excitement to the finale of the Christmas concert in the WPAC.

Class war was real 'disaster'

Centering around the theme "Flirtin' with Disaster," Homecoming Week brought a fun break from the normal school routine. In fact, the heated rivalry between the seniors and juniors brought more than just a break with a bit of "Flirtin'; it brought almost total war.

Junior Joyce Templeton said of the damage done to a number of floats, "I think some of the students got carried away with the float rivalling; they didn't have to tear things up like they did."

While many students did participate in "Hat and Shades Day," "Inside Out Day," "Sweats" and "Twins" Days, and the traditional "Gold and Black Day," many others declined the opportunity.

"I think the week was fun but not many people showed school spirit during the dress days," Linda Spratt, senior, said.

Capping off the week was the Quill & Scroll - FFA Mum Sale and a pep session for the purpose of honoring the State Champ boys' golf team. Half a day of school off was a treat for students in honor of the team, but many felt that students should have received a full day, as had been the custom for other State Champ teams.

Friday afternoon students returned for the Homecoming Parade, the 5 K run, and Homefest. Booths, displays, and the annual Fish Fry held by the PTA Council were highlights.

Homefest chairman Bonnie Lamey said, "Homefest allows the community to get involved with the schools and have a place to get together with neighbors and enjoy food, fun, and a football game all close to home."

But Homecoming 1983 will really be remembered for the war between the classes, one that was not won because of the damages done.

A desperate scramble occurs as the Warriors fumble the ball away to Lawrence North during the game which was won by the Wildcats.

State Champion boys golf trophy is accepted by Principal Ernest Medcalfe at the Friday morning pep session before students were dismissed for one half day.

As the parking lots on the Warren campus became a maze of cars, and the bleachers at the stadium appeared to be a blur of unrecognizable faces, students were reunited with old friends. Echoes of "I haven't seen you in a long time," or "What you doin' now," became repetitious remarks.

While students, faculty and friends mingled in the stands, the football team prepared for a difficult Homecoming game with the Lawrence North Wildcats. Little did the Warriors know that the theme of Homecoming, "Flirtin' with Disaster," would become a reality for them.

During the second half the Warriors caught up to the Wildcats and headed toward what could have been a victory. "We played as individuals the first half, but then we came together as a team and rallied to a 15-15 score," senior football player John Gegner said.

Sadly, the overtime score was not in favor of Warren. "I was disappointed because we didn't know the outcome of the other games in our cluster, and whether or not we were going to be in the playoffs," said John.

Traditionally the Queen and her court walked to their positions on the track, but the 1983 court circled the field in cars, and each girl was led out to her position on the field.

Senior April Higgens was crowned Queen by the 1982 Queen Janice Eckart.

The parade this year also was different in that it wound through the community from Pleasant Run Elementary instead of coming down Post Road.

Although the Warriors lost, students will remember their valiant efforts, the parade, Homefest, the Court and "Flirtin' with Disaster."

Gaining on an opponent, teacher and coach Jerry Stauffer increases his pace during the Homefest 5 K race.

Making himself at home on the gym floor and catching up on his reading, the Warren Chicken entertains the crowd with his antics.

Heat brings fun and work

As the lights were turned off and the doors locked, it looked as if the school building would be an empty stage for the remainder of the summer. However, just as the dust began to settle on the tiles, it was time for clean-up. For some students, school was over. For summer school students, it had just begun.

Many students opted to take required courses, such as History, Economics, and Government. Others signed up for Drivers' Education. Junior Nancy Dowling said, "It was okay, I guess. Summer classes are probably easier. It's only one or two classes, and not a lot of homework."

While some students spend their summer days swimming or sunbathing, others sought jobs. "It's so easy to get a job in the summer. I just walked up and said, "I want a job," and the lady said okay," said junior Martha Fisse.

While a great number of students were enrolled in summer school, many more were involved in team practices throughout the hot late summer days. Band practices and fall sports, such as football, took up many hours. "You put a lot of hard work and time into it, but it's worth it. You get a feeling when you're out on the field, unlike anything you've ever felt before," said senior band member Linda Spratt.

The Marion County Fair and Indiana State Fair occupied some student's time. While some were entertained at the fair, others worked at booths or with various displays. Senior Deena Orr, who worked at both fairs, said, "The best part about working at Mr. Al Morgan's Lemonade Shake-up stand was watching the little children with their balloons and dirty faces stand on their toes and watch us make the lemonade."

Summer Survival students Todd Alfs and Sunny Morning canoe down the rapids of White River.

Free education is seldom 'free'

By Mike Mellob

A basic principle which America has maintained throughout its history is the idea that the United States offers a free education to each and every American. However, this idea is not entirely accurate since students are responsible for a great deal of their school necessities.

Although it is true that an American student does not have to pay before he enrolls in public school, the parents or in some cases the students themselves are responsible for, among other things, bookrental fees. Depending on the classes a student takes, it is not uncommon for bookrental fees to exceed $40. Aside from the book fees, a student is responsible for such items as notebooks, pencils, pens, folders, calculators, and other miscellaneous items.

"Between supplies for all of my classes, and a calculator for math, I must have spent over $50," said senior Julie Young.

Of course, a student must have the right kind of clothes to attend school. Some students spend between $200 - $300 for clothes, depending on their fashion taste.

"When I first started school, I bought about three pairs of jeans and on those alone I spent $100, plus I bought a couple of sweaters and a blouse or two," said senior Dawn Ballard.

Just to get to school costs for many students. Although buses are available for transportation free to school, many of the upper classmen prefer to drive; therefore, gas money is an expense.

"It costs me about $15 a week to drive to school. I have to pick up a couple of friends and I have to take them back home after school," said junior Jeff Horn.

Since students are in school from last August until early May, they spend a great deal of money on food. The price of a Class A lunch(balanced meal tray) is .95, but that is only if the student does not wander over to the snack bar and indulge in goodies including pies, chips, and ice cream.

"A lunch does not fill me up. After I get done eating, I usually buy some Nachos and munch at the snack bar," said junior Mike Orange.

Then there are the costs for class rings, yearbooks, graduation, Warren sweats, football and basketball games, etc. A so called free education in America depends on the student and his desires, and if the student is like the majority, education if hardly free.

Dollars disappear as juniors Michelle McGurran and Linda Rogers purchase supplies in the bookstore.

As the meter rolls, junior Shaun McDonald eyes the cost of driving to school at around 1.18.9 cents per gallon.

Stars come out for The Warren

By Amy Wright

As students filed into school in August, there were no more construction crews, closed halls, or equipment. Instead, students saw a new facility which would offer them the chance to study music, theater, and dance. A facility that included over 116,000 square feet of rehearsal and technical space. The facility, a project that took two years to complete, was officially called The Warren Performing Arts Center.

The center provided students with the chance to learn and study in modern surroundings. The C.E. Eash Auditorium did not contain many of the modern elements that were necessary. As stated in the Sept. 9, 1983 iss of Warren's The Owl, Mr. Thom Feit, director of the theatre department said, "The catalysis that started the whole project rolling was the concern over sound reinforcement in the old Eash Auditorium. You simply could not hear."

For theater students, the center provided them with the opportunity to perform in a professional situation. As added features, the facility contained a stage with more than 5,000 feet of space, 45 trap doors, a hydraulic stage lift, and many special effects alternatives.

With a seating capacity of 1,025, The Warren was used for school and community performances throughout the year. According to Mr. Craig Thompson, director of the Performing Arts Center, in the Sept. 9, 1983 issue of Warren's The Owl, the facility intends to provide a place for senior citizens, shut-in housewives and the handicapped to go to feel like they are part of the community. All community members including the hearing-impaired, utilized the center. Included in the auditorium are special devices which allow the hearing-impaired to comprehend what is being said on stage.

During Homecoming Week, the Grand Opening of the center took place. Featured was comedian Shelley Berman, The Evansville Ballet and Dance Kaleidoscope, and the Indianapolis Arts Choral. Throughout the year, students also performed in such events as the musical, "Brigadoon," and the fall play, "Voices From the High School."

With the project completed, the stage was set, and all community members, faculty, and students benefited from The Warren Performing Arts Center.

State Finals always brings lots of snow

By Beth Toplifie

It was the day after the Girls State Basketball Finals. It would have been a normal Sunday if it hadn't been for the rumors. What do you mean rumors?! It was just a weather report predicting 4-6 inches of snow on Monday morning. But somehow this weather report turned into something like a rumor when the story spread and the number of inches kept getting higher and higher. It meant a possible vacation from school, and that had everyone excited, even the teachers. But alas, as we crawled out of bed with half opened eyes the next morning, we saw that not only was there not even one flake of snow on the ground, but there weren't even any flakes flying through the air. Looked like school after all.

The grim situation changed as the day progressed though About ten minutes before 8 a.m. a few flakes were seen drifting through the sky. After the pep session for the girls basketball team 16th street was no longer visible from the south windows of the school. We all started to speculate and try to decide whether it was worth that extra effort to finish the homework assignment that was due in seventh hour.

Finally at about 11 a.m. we heard from the man that later became the hero of the day, Principal Ernest Medcalfe; school was officially out! With growing excitement, students clumped into groups and headed for the doors.

The snow didn't stop that evening and everything seemed to be shut down. People panicked and headed for the grocery store for necessary food. Even Washington Square closed its doors.

It looked as though we might get even more than one snow day if things kept going like they had been. And they did. By Monday evening school was out for Tuesday too.

Tuesday morning came around and many people, many of them students, rolled out of bed and braved the outside world of blowing snow as they delivered the morning paper to the people of their community. It was still snowing.

The great dig out was on. There was nothing else to do, and since Mom demanded it, quite a few of us were stuck with a shovel in our hands and a pile of snow in front of us. The wonderful vacation we had looked forward to was not everything we had hoped for

What do you mean there isn't anything on T.V. but soap operas?" and other such statements were commonplace. Everything was closed up so we couldn't even escape the house for a while. About all there was to do was to wait for Indy to thaw out.

Boredom creeped on and things didn't look much better with the report that there would be no school on Wednesday either. The situation was bad and everyone had a touch of still craziness. Finally though the sun came out and we returned to school with stories of how much fun we had during our vacation, and what we would do with our next snow days.

President provides unforgettable day

By Richard Lasley

Federal deficits. Lebanon. Nuclear arms. All of these issues were on the agenda of the President of the United States. But on Dec. 8, President Ronald Reagan took time out of his busy schedule to address an audience of local high school students and other community members at the National Forum on Excellence in Education.

Because Warren was one of the nation's top sixty high schools, over 100 students were given the privelege to see and hear the President.

Reagan's speech on American education was clear and to the point. He stressed things such as bringing back good old fashioned discipline to American's schools. "Some (teachers) don't even have the authority to quiet down their class. In some schools teachers suffer verbal and physical abuse. I can't say it too forcefully: this must stop," President Reagan said.

He also stressed the need for raising America's academic standards. Saying that our schools are not as tough as those in Japan and the Soviet Union, he cited examples where he talked to foreign exchange students who had told him that for them attending American schools was like taking a vacation.

On the whole, it was an exciting venture for all of the students involved. First of all, the Warren Central band was given the honor of playing "Hail to the Chief" for the President, an honor not often bestowed upon many military bands, not counting school bands. Also, senior Brad Brown, Owl photographer, was given press credentials and was the only high school photographer certified to cover the event. As senior Melissa Hamilton said, "I felt it was an experience I will never forget."

Dramas enjoy new PAC stage home

By Lori Neff

"I feel that the three plays I had roles in this year, Voices from the High School, House at Pooh Corner and Hello Out There provided much valuable experience. I especially felt challenged by Hello Out There because of the unusual subject matter of the play," said sophomore Rod Rose.

During the Grand Opening of the WEAC, Warren Central Theatre presented Voices From the High School, by Peter Lee. This production was a conglomeration of scenes about the emotional obstacles teenagers are now facing. Alcoholism, drug addiction, child abuse, anorexia, teenage pregnancy, and suicide were just a few of the dramatic, true to life topics faced.

Students were able to relate to their characters in this first production, as the characters were people of their own age who faced the same traumas they face.

However, in the next production, the cast had to relate to characters that were fantasy land animals and simple minded. These characters had to reach out to the minds of children.

Plush and furry costumes filled with energetic young actors and actresses were the ingredients to bringing the famous children's classic The House at Pooh Corner by A.A. Milne to life.

Yet on Jan. 20 and 21 the drama department changed gears and turned to another direction.

Using the intimate atmosphere of theatre-in-the round, three one act plays were presented. Little scenery was used as were few props, and the production depended mainly on the actors.

Sorry Wrong Number by Lucille Fletcher, Here We ARe by Dorothy Parker, and Hello Out There by William Saroyan were all student directed and student cast, and by working with fellow classmates toward a quality production, students learned the value of constructive criticism.

'A Tribute...' is music highlight

By Josie Soliven

Before and after school rehearsals are a necessary part of preparing for a concert for members of Warren's music department.

"I don't mind staying after school," said sophomore Mike Finkbiner, member of the orchestra, "It's all a part of it."

Many of those rehearsals were spent preparing for the Grand Opening Concert of the Warren Performing Arts Center. Music groups were also honored when the band, orchestra, and string ensemble were invited to play down at the Convention Center for the National Forum on Excellence in Education. The band had the honor of actually playing "Hail to the Chief" for the appearance of President of the United States Ronald Reagan, a feat seldom experiences by any band, let alone a high school band.

Other concerts presented by the music department included the Pops Concert, with featured guest soloist James Beckel, the principal trombonist with the Indianapolis Symphonic Orchestra; the Winter Winds, and the spring concerts of the choir, band, and orchestra.

Convos may be a past privilege

It could be that all school convocations will soon be a thing of the past as a result of new state rulings, but staff and students would miss them.

"To broaden horizons and to give students an experience they might not get anywhere else are the purposes of convocations that Warren presents," said Mr. Clifford Gates, vice principal.

Mr. Gates explained that Warren tries to offer a variety of convocations. "We try to offer educational as well as entertaining convos. We try to plan for what the students would like."

"I thing most of the convocations this year have been educational, and I think they should continue."

Mr. Gates explained that he gets ideas for convocations mostly from teacher imput, and some organizations call and ask if they can perform.

"We get a lot of calls from religious groups. We try and stay away from them so we don't get into trouble for mixing school and church," Mr. Gates commented.

Warren offers both required and optional convocations. Mr. Gates explained that students need to have exposure to different kinds and this is why they have a choice on most of the convos.

The magic show and most club activities are optional; however, such programs as the Christmas program and the Symphonic Orchestra are required.

"The new Performing Arts Center makes having convos much easier. It's easier to hear and see in there. The only bad thing is having to schedule three convocations in order to include all 2400 students enrolled," said Mr. Gates.

Students feel separating the students into three convos is bad to, in some ways. Junior Anita Blankenship said, "I think it is really bad that we are unable to sit next to our friends."

But junior Bob Espich felt that it was good that students get to watch other students perform and that Warren should continue to offer convocations to the whole student body.

As a result of the new state law requiring 360 minutes of class a day, convocations and club activities may be excluded or very rare, commented Mr. Mike Copper, student activities coordinator.

"I don't think that would be fair...that would make the whole day monotonous," said junior Greg Dodd.

Rah, Rah creates a common bond

By Billy Cook

"I think the value of a pep session is to bring the school together for a common cause," said Jerry Stauffer, head football coach. And on Sept. 30 Warren officially had its first pep session.

To recognize the boys golf team for their State Championship was the main purpose, but recognition and support was also given other fall sports, including Stauffer's football team who faced an important playoff game that night.

Even thought the football team lost that important Homecoming game to Lawrence North, the school was still brought together for that "common cause," which Coach Stauffer thought so important.

"There is a maximum of one pep session per six weeks," commented Mrs. Linda Bayne, cheerleader sponsor. There is only one exception to that and that is the occurence of a state or national championship, which would fall under the School Board's policy concerning early release, stated Julie Mattingly, in the Oct. 7 issue of The Owl in her story about pep sessions.

Mrs. Bayne also commented, "I feel that the first pep session is critical to set the mood for the rest."

Returning senior varsity cheerleader Kim Newman replied, "The first pep session was kind of unorganized because nobody understood what was going on (With the state championships, etc.) I also felt it was good because the whole school had to be there to watch."

To make up for the one pep session per six weeks, the cheerleaders had two before school pep sessions in honor of the football team. Although the attendance is lower than for a regular pep session, it still helped team and school spirit.

Mrs. Bayne stated, "To get student involvement, it all depends on how you attack it, because it is better to start with students on the floor instead of teachers."

This year instead of having the Warrior Indian as the mascot, it was changed to the Warrior Chicken. The chicken was originally seen first at the 1983 State Gymnastic meet at Warren. This year it was hatched at one of the home football games to recognize the birth of a new school mascot. Junior Donna Yoder said, "I think the chicken is neat because it is very energetic and helps team spirit."

Whether the pep sessions are before school, during or after, the team being recognized and the student body do come together for a common goal.

During several of the pep sessions there were problems with student behavior, to the point sometimes of the whole spirit of the session being damaged. At the last pep session of the year, those students who did not want to attend did not have to and some felt that improved the atmosphere of the session.

Fads go from dolls to 'Thriller,' beef

By Michelle Watts

Tom Cruise, Michael Jackson, and a man from Tennessee had no idea what they would start when they entered the public eye.

When Tom Cruise hit the big silver screen in Risky Business, girls literally swooned when his baby blues peered over the rim of his glasses that resembled safety or government issue. Thus began a new trend among teenage boys. But glasses didn't stop there.

Michael Jackson's sunglasses were even more popular, along with his famous rhinestudded glove, red leather jacket with 27 zippers, and new way of dancing.

Just about anytime the radio was on, chances are a song from Micheal Jackson's Thriller album could be heard.

Many jumped on the scene with their version of Jackson's Beat It. "I think Michael Jackson brought out a lot of this and made it famous, but I think it is guys like me who keep it going," said Freddie Bell, senior.

During the Christmas season, Jackson's album was not the only hit item. Cabbage Patch dolls were unleashed by a Tennessee creator who came up with the idea of "all different" dolls, each with its own name, adoption papers and, of course, limited edition.

The public went crazy over these dolls and stores would have lines outside their doors for hours. Some even refused to stock the dolls in fear of damage by crowds.

"They've got to be the cutest things around," said Susan Grabhorn, senior. "I love mine!"

Not too far behind the dolls were Care Bears. "I've got about all a person can have of Smurfs, so I've moved on to Care Bears," said Dionne Hanson, sophomore. "They're so neat with a certain feeling, like Grumpy, on their tummy."

On their stomachs a sun might be seen or a raincloud and they came in a wide variety of items from stuffed animals to glasses and folders.

A certain phrase entered everyone's vocabulary this year heard from a cute/ugly old lady on Wendy's commercials. "Where's the beef" was soon seen on everything to Wendy's delight—shirts, hats, pencils and the front of other fast food stores.

In the Standard Collegiate Dictionary, fad is defined as "Style, amusement, fashion or the like, that temporarily engages the attention and interests of many people." This makes a person wonder how long these fads will stay and what new fads will replace them.

Almost anything goes in style

When grandmother and grandfather, and maybe even mom and day, went to school, all students were expected to dress more or less alike. Boys wore nice slacks and girls wore dresses, but how times have changed.

Today in public schools there no longer exists a "dress code," as it was known. Students dress according to the latest fashions or after their favorite idols.

One of the most influential people on teen fashions this year was Michael Jackson, the pop/rock star. When Michael began to show-off glittering socks and pennyloafers by wearing shorter length pants, so did millions of other teen Americans. "Floods," as they were known a few years ago, with socks are "in" now.

Other fashions from Jackson have been a red leather jacket with many zippers and a glove on only one hand.

"Today's fashions are very lenient. Anyone can wear anything," said junior Nancy Miller.

Anything is in, skin tight pants to extra pleated baggies, a muscle shirt with Japanese writing to a short sleeve pinstriped dress shirt with a leather tie...anything goes.

Both guys and girls still wear the faded Lee and Levi brand names, but many have left those for Friday. The rest of the week is reserved for baggies, plain and pinstripe in denim and cotton.

Polo style shirts are still worn, but with collars up and with a pull over vest. Crop tops and "Flashdance" sweatshirts have become more popular, along with argyle sleeveless sweaters.

Ties are in and thin! They are popular with both guys and girls. Knit or leather, they are a nice compliment to any outfit.

Mini-skirts are no longer a sign of "punk" or "valley." They are in a variety of styles and colors, and can be worn for a sporty look or dressy.

In the past fashions were limited to only a few. With today's fashions, anyone can wear any style or color they want and be "in style."

Holiday spirit up despite cold front

Unlike years ago when students asked for Tonka trucks, miniature stoves, and Barbie dolls, this year many students might have included a Sony Walkman, Michael Jackson's album, "Thriller," or a home computer on their Christmas list. To most students, Christmas didn't bring the excitement of going to visit Santa Claus, but instead, the anticipation of a two week vacation from school.

Because school did not break for vacation until December 23, students had very little time to shop or enjoy other Christmas activities. However, some students, such as those in choral groups spent long hours performing at various holiday events. The Madrigals performed in several Christmas concerts throughout the community.

Service clubs and groups aided the needy and sent Christmas cheer. The German Club, for example, made Care Bears for needy children. Other students helped out by giving and delivering food items so these people could also have Christmas dinner.

Christmas break gave students a chance to sleep in and relax. Students were also able to visit with friends and family. Senior Carla Hunter said, "The best part about Christmas vacation was having time to visit my friends."

As Christmas Eve approached temperatures began to dip far below zero. Windchills delved as far as 50 below zero. Many churches had planned special Christmas programs since the holiday fell on a Sunday. However, due to the bitter cold weather, many services were cancelled, and people were warned to stay inside. Senior Claude Hawkins said, "During the cold weather I just stayed in, and had friends over to watch football games on tv."

As the end of vacation drew near, students returned to school clad in new clothes. The halls rang out with excessant chatter, and finally the voices quieted and sat back for a new semester.

Christmas Dance proves profitable

By Kelly Hartman

After three months of preparation the 1983 Christmas dance, sponsored by the cheerleaders was a social and financial success.

According to Mrs. Linda Bayne, the first semester cheerleading sponsor, organization was the biggest key. Seventy per cent of the effort involved decorations. Supplies were purchased from National Decorators Supplies downtown. Snowflakes, which were hung above in the foyer, were donated by the art department.

The Christmas dance queen was senior April Higgins and elected king was senior Greg Conwell. There were four nominees from each individual class.

Those nominated were sophomores Kathy Raftery, Antoinette Wright, James Albert, and Jeff Massey. Juniors were Jenny Hurley, Billy Cook and Rick Rush. Dawn Ballard, April Higgins, Greg Conwell and Joe Howe were the senior nominees.

As senior cheerleader Patty Conwell said, "It was a lot of hard work but in the long run, we (cheerleaders) all thought it was worth it."

With near 300 in attendance and music provided by WEDM, Mrs. Bayne felt that everyone enjoyed themselves. Cafeteria Manager Ruth Gershaw and Harry Wiseman, the head custodian, were named honorary king and queen of the dance. Mrs. Bayne said, "We could have never done it without all of their help."

The profit from the dance was used to bring the cheerleaders out of the near $500 debt that they were previously experiencing.

Cancun, Florida make vacation

By Susie Chappell

As the days began to get longer and the flowers began to bloom, many students wondered if it would ever get here. It, Spring Break, did get here and on March 31 students of Warren Central were dismissed for a week of fun in the sun.

Whether it was Florida, Cancun, or their own backyard, students came back to school April 9 with some dark tans.

Many students went to Florida over break with either family, friends, or a group.

Senior Richard Davis went to Florida with Old Bethel's Youth Group. "One day of the week we went to Disneyworld. The rest of the week we stayed at the camp and hung around the beach all day."

Senior Kim Estes went to Florida with a friend. "I went because I wanted to have a good time. I deserved a break today."

However, it wasn't Florida that welcomed Spanish teacher Beth Wolff and 25 students. Ms. Wolff and her students went to Cancun, Mexico for the week.

Junior Holly Duke said, "It was neat to visit another country and see how they lived. The weather was great, it hit 90 almost everyday and I got a good tan."

As the seasons change the weather gets warmer, students may begin to get a cold. However, according to school nurse Winn Ramer, business in the nurse's office slacked off before break.

"I don't see many kids before business sorta slacks off. I think it may be because the kids have something to think about. After, though, I see a lot because of sunburns and kids are just burned out."

However, not everyone hit the beach over break. Some people stayed here in Indiana and saw movies, went shopping, and stayed in bed late.

Junior Cathy Just stated, "I stayed up until 1 or 2 in the morning and didn't get up until 1 or 2 the next afternoon. I saw a lot of movies and did a lot of shopping."

Senior Julie Cornwell said, "I stayed at home and worked most of the week. I also did some shopping and did some things with a bunch of friends."

So whether they stayed in their own backyard or travelled to far away places, Warriors had a break from the same old routine and has some fun in the sun.

During spring break, Florida's beaches were crowded with high school students.

WMTV dazzles with variety acts

by Amy Wright

Centered around the popular concept of MTV, the 1984 Warren Follies offered music, dance, and comedy. WMTV, Warren Music Television was held on May 4, and included students as well as faculty members.

Like MTV, WMTV included VJ's who introduced each act. Included in the show were five VJ's, Brian Boykins, Tracy Dowler, Tish Glenn, Mike Melloh, and Brent Anderson. The VJ's were dressed in anything from valley girl styles to the ultimate punk rock outfit. Senior VJ Mike Melloh said, "I think the way they did it this year with the theme brought it together unlike other years. But, I think it needed more skits and comedy acts."

The majority of the show was comprised of song and dance acts. Some of the songs that were performed were Lionel Richie's popular hit, Hello, sung by senior Russ Watson, and Rock me Like a Hurricane by senior Brent Anderson and the band, CHARADE.

In addition to the choral acts, the jazz band directed by Mr. Jim Butz performed two pieces. One number featured trombone and trumpet solos by Kermit Bell and Scott Jones.

Two student bands, RAVE and CHARADE, dazzled the audience with their loud, hard rock music. Featured in the bands were drums and electric guitars.

For those in the audience interested in the latest dance fad, the Latin Breakers performed break dancing. The group of Warren students danced to two musical pieces.

Throughout the show, solo vocal performances by such people as Clyde Coleman, Pam Fairclough, Tamara Easton, and Lisa Smalls were included. In addition, two vocal duets, comprised of Rod Russ and Tish Glenn, and Angie Schnabl and Ruthelva Paugh were part of the show. Also featured was a dance duet by Reona Easley and Yvonne Watkins.

The final comedy skit of the show was the Ms. Golden Avocado Beauty Contest. Highlighted in the skit was Mr. Alison Fair, and various contestants such as Steve Shuck and Tracy Dowler. Mike Melloh acted as MC for the beauty contest, and in a glittered tuxedo jacket.

With a variety of acts, WMTV was a success. The audience received song, dance, and laughter, and the performers received stage experience.

Sleepy hamlet awakens playgoers

By Chad Smith

In one case, Tommy loved Fiona, and she loved him. Then there was Meg who liked Jeff, but he didn't share the infatuation. Last, but definitely not least, there was Charlie, Jean, Harry, and Maggie.

Charlie loved Jean, and she thought of him with equal affection. When Charlie went to marry Jean, however, Harry stepped in; he loved Jean when he supposedly was in love with Maggie!

A short synopsis of the Broadway musical Brigadoon does it no justice, but nevertheless, it was the basis for the 1984 Warren Central Musical.

The musical was about an enchanted village in Scotland and ran on March 22, 23, and 24. According to director Thom Feit before the production, he expected good turn-outs for two reasons; he felt that people would be anxious to see the new facilities of the Performing Arts Center since Brigadoon was the first musical ever performed there, and he also felt that the cast was doing an excellent job.

Cast member Angie Duffer said that although the musical didn't receive a big turn-out on the first night, they did get a big show-up of people on the last two days; Mr. Feit's hopes turned into realities.

A couple of reasons why the cast and crew had little difficulty can be attributed to the fact that the sophistication of the PAC helped alleviate many obstacles experienced with previous musicals.

Senior Mike Melloh (Jeff Douglas) said, "We had initial problems trying to convey the story behind Brigadoon with the accents, characterization, . . . etc. But during the final weeks, the cast pulled together as a solid unit and delivered to the audience what I thought was a superior production."

Performing one of their duets, senior Russ Watson (Tommy Albright) and senior Pam Page (Fiona MacLaren) sing about their love for each other.

Magical night set in "Heaven"

It was someplace few thought of as heaven. It was the gym. It was the scene of shorts, smelly socks, and tennis shoes squeaking against the wooden floor.

It was all that, but on the evening of May 12, it was something entirely different. It was the scene of a castle, gardens, and a wood. It had low lights and romantic corner tables. It was "Heaven."

This complete transformation n of the gym, the main element of the romantic atmosphere of the prom, was what allowed a theme like "Heaven in your Arms" to be successful.

"It had all the things it needed. The backdrops hid the bleachers to make it look not like the gym," senior Donna Rhinesmith said.

"The prom was real pretty. I didn't think it looked like a gym," senior Steve McKinley said.

Although thte location was vital, it took amny more things to make prom night a success. For many the evening began with dinner at a nice restuarant like Lafour, the Loft, or Steak and Ale. However, the preparations began long before dinner started. The purchase of a dress and the rental of a tux made the evening a formal affair. Perhaps it was the flowers that made the evening special, or maybe it was the use of Dad's fancy new car. These elements were just the beginning though. The prom itself made the evening.

The band Juice provided the music, but the students provided the dancing atmosphere.

It took a while to get started, but soon the dance floor became packed. It became obvious that the evening was going to be as much fun as everyone made it.

Soon the dancers were asked to be seated for the traditional Senior Most Likely Awards. The awards served their purpose well and added a light side to the prom.

Receipient of the Best Dressed Senior Girl Award, Donna Rhinesmith said, "I didn't expect it, but I was real proud of it."

After a litle more dancing the floor cleared again, this time for the big event of the evening, the crowning of the King and Queen. The court proceeded to the front and cheers went up as April Higgens and Greg Montgomery were crowned. Soon everyone was back on the floor to dance away what was left of a successful evening.

Students enjoy all night activity

by Amy Wright

Every year, students put on their best clothes, eat dinner in a nice restaurant, and then arrive at the event of the year, the prom. When the last dance is over, the king and queen have been crowned, and the Senior Most-Likely Award have been presented, students race off to stay out all night. However, while some students choose to go to parties, others wish not to participate in that kind of activity. For the first time, the TASK (Take a Stand-for Kids) Force held a post-prom called "After Heaven."

The event began at 1 a.m. and continued until breakfast. The highlight of the evening was from 1 a.m. to 3 a.m. when Q-95's Tom Griswold played the latest musical hits. Students were able to dance to the music with commentary by Griswold.

Following the dance time, the floor became a gym floor. Students participated in volleyball, basketball, badminton, and ping-pong.

In addition to the sports, the TASK Force provided three color television sets which played pre-taped movies. The movies included Prom Night, Mr. Mom, and First Blood.

After the second session, the swimming pool opened. The pool was open for swimming while athletics and movies continued.

To culminate the evening, a breakfast consisting of donuts and sausage and eggs was served. In addition to breakfast, popcorn and coke were served throughout "After Heaven."

Post-prom was open to all prom participant's escorted by a Warren student or any Warren junior or senior. "I think it's a good idea. It's safer and cheaper compared to going to a motel and drinking," said senior Nancy Steiner.

"After Heaven" could be a new Warren tradition as over 200 students participated. Not only did students enjoy themselves, but they were also free from drinking and its hazards.

Week of activity seniors last fling

by Amy Wright

Capped off with shaving cream covered people, water balloon fights, and a tricycle race, the seniors participated in their week. The last full week of school for seniors was designated as Senior Week.

The week started off with "Senior t-shirt Day." Seniors were asked to wear the class shirt with the class theme on it. Late that night, the Wayne White Benefit Basketball Game was held. The game was scheduled in order to raise funds for Mr. White's children following his death. Included in the game was a teacher-student game, and a teacher pep band, danceline, and cheering section.

Tuesday was "Dress Up Day." Students and faculty brought their Sunday best for the school day. A before school carnation sale was held by the Student Council. In addition, many students were honored for their excellent work at Honors Night, which was held in the Warren Performing Arts Center.

Since summer was just around the corner, students got a head start by wearing beach attire on Wednesday. Many Warriors came to school clad in shades, Hawaiian shirts, and shorts. The annual Kar Kraft show was held at the close of the day. Students and faculty were able to view some of Warren's finest hot rods. Later that night a toga slave sale was scheduled.

Thursday was dubbed "Toga Day." Togas of all kinds were found in the halls, from the tradtional white toga to leopard skin togas. Senior putt putt golf was held at the 38th and Arlington putt putt course.

Finally, the climax of the week was on Friday. Not only were students supposed to wear t-shirts and short, but the annual Senior Olympics was held. Senior Stephanie Brown said, "Senior Olympic day was my favorite because it gave me a chance to be with seniors and it was a fun ending to the week."

The week allowed senior to have one last fling before finals and graduation. For many, Senior Week was the best week of their final year at Warren.

Seniors play in crazy olympics

by Amy Wright

Once again, for the fifth year in a row, the Senior Olympics was held. The event was held on May 11 at the Warren Stadium. Grand marshalls for the event were Mr. Roach, Mrs. Spilker, and Mrs. Ginther.

Like other years, the event began with a parade around the track led by the grand marshalls. Each team followed carrying some kind of banner or poster that displayed their team name. Each team was comprised of 4 senior girls and 4 senior boys.

To begin competition, the first event was the trike race. This event was a relay type with each team member riding 30 yards. For most students, riding a trike didn't come as easy as their childhood days.

Next, students raced with wheelbarrows. The object of the event was for a girl and a guy to push each other in a wheelbarrow until all team members had participated.

The Tug of War tested each team's strength. Each team was given one minute to pull their opposition over the line.

Contestants were able to come closer to their team members during the cuddle contest. The winners, had the smallest waist measurement with all 16 feet on the ground.

The final team event was the shaving cream obstacle course. Each team had 2 cans of shaving cream and were supposed to jump a few hurdles.

Senior Claude Hawkins said, "Everyone had fun at Senior Olympics, especially with the shaving cream, but the Student Council had trouble handling us crazy seniors."

Points were distributed to the top five teams with the winner receiving 10 points and consecutive winners got 8, 6, 4, and 2 points.

Following the culmination of events, junior Billy Cook held the awards ceremony. In third place was team 23, second place team 13, and the winning team was team 27. The team, Cop's Kissing Cousins, was comprised of Dianna Minnick, Donna Rhinesmith, Dawn Wright, Jenny Clark, Dean Wildauer, Greg Conwell, Gary Bacon, and Wayne Hochesang.

Funny faces of senior Dean Wildauer and Dawn Ballard were symbolic of the crazy olympic fun.

Committee sets grad exercises

Months before that glorious moment when tassels were changed and tears of joy and saddness flowed, plans were being made for the 1984 commencement ceremony.

To help out with this large task, each department chairman was asked to select a senior to be on the committee.

The major goal of that committee was to make the commencement one of the greatest educational milestones in the life of every senior and every family.

Senior Dave Herrick, who was part of the commencement committee, said, "I think everyone was expecting a real wild commencement. It went really well in comparison."

One hitch in the good feelings about the planning for commencement came about with the selection of the two senior speakers and the one welcoming speaker.

It was felt by many seniors that the commencement speakers were not really picked by the students. As one committee member said, "It seemed like the committee was there to do the work that was already done."

However, Assistant Principal Clifford Gates said, "Some of the things were planned, but they(the committee members) all had jobs to do."

Despite this problem the afternoon of May 20th went well, and the tassels tossed and the tears flowed and the "Class with Class" graduated.

Excitement fills air at ceremony

Characterized by rainy skies, the day was an enthusiastic one as students gathered in the cattle barn at the State Fairgrounds.

Proud parents, friends, and relatives began piling into the Coliseum for another Warren Central commencement ceremony.

Presenting her welcoming speech to the class, Jennifer Clark was followed by senior speakers Susan Grabhorn and Dennis Papenmeier.

The proud moment arrived as the senior class received their diplomas. Following the diplomas, seniors Deena Orr and Stacy Rathbun received their valedictorian and salutatorian awards.

Waiting to hear their name for the George W. Askren Scholarship, ten students received four year awards while 18 more received one year scholarships for a total of 28 recipients.

Senior Steve McKinley said, "I was kind of excited and happy that it was all over."

Concluding the commencement ceremony, Reverend Jon A. Carlstrom said the benediction. Then proceeding out of the Coliseum to the song "Pomp and Chivalry" played by the orchestra, the class of 1984 became alumni of Warren Central.

Commencement was just the beginning for these seniors. According to a survey done by The Owl, 108 out of 163 students surveyed planned to go to college, 16 planned to go to technical school, and nine planned to go into the military. In this same survey, medicine was the most popular career choice.

One of 10 people surveyed going into education, senior Teresa Kopczynski planned to become a secondary teacher of English. She said, "I really enjoy being around people, and I really like English. I always thought that I would like to teach it."

Senior Chinta Guneratne was one of the 37 out of those surveyed who planned to go into medicine. She was planning to go to Columbia University and major in biochemistry and French. She said, "It's one of the ambitions of my life. Ever since I was little I've wanted to be a doctor. I guess you have some sort of motivation that you don't really analyze."

Chinta felt that so many people chose medicine as a career because it is a lucrative and prestigious career.

Despite the variety of careers and goals of the seniors, wherever their dreams might take them, the seniors will always share the common bond and foundation of high school.

Academics were certainly in the spotlight throughout the year. They were the reason that the act went on, but they were more too. It included more than doing homework in the evenings. It was learning, but it was also being excited to learn and really know something that other people didn't know. It was applying ourselves and being the best that we could really be. The extra time really gave us a first class act and put us into the position of being one of the top 60 schools in the country. Warren named top 60 in nation

Last winter President Reagan and T.H. Bell, Secretary of Education, set up the Secondary School Recognition Program. The program was designed to identify a national group of schools that were unusually effective in educating students.

Last spring, a representative from the University of Wisconsin evaluated Warren Central. Warren received high marks for its excellent curriculum, faculty and support of the PTSA and community.

On September 27, 1983 Mr. Medcalfe and Dr. Donn Kaupke, Superintendent of Warren Township, traveled to Washington D.C. to attend the awards ceremony. At the ceremony, they received a plaque and a flag.

Mr. Medcalfe said he was 'enthusiastic and excited' about receiving the award for the school and the community.

Also last spring President Reagan suggested that a plan be comprised for Merit Pay. Merit Pay is the system for paying some teachers more than others for their performance in the classroom.

There are many arguments against merit pay. One is how teaching can be meaured. Another is that it could turn colleagues into competitiors.

One of those opposed is Mr. John Orr, government and economics teacher. Mr. Orr, legislature chairman for teachers, said, "It (Merit Pay) is not effective. Its just a political football."

Last October Warren Central held a ceremony for the students and staff about being chosen as one of the top 60 schools in the nation. "I thought the performance overall was terrific. The speeches the students gave really summed up the good things offered at Warren Central. The award was terrific, it made me feel proud of Warren, its staff, and its students," said junior Sharilynn Stanley.

WPAC provides new alternatives

By Sylvia Warren

Many students try to stay out of the limelight, while others prefer to be in the spotlight. With the opening of the Performing Arts Center many different classes in the area of performing arts were added to the curriculum. These courses allowed students to actually perform on the stage or work behind the stage.

For the students who wanted to develop acting skills, Mr. Thom Feit's drama classes were offered.

"I want them to start thinking and adapt to new situations. So about one-third of the time we do improvisations," said Mr. Feit.

Music which plays a leading role in so many production provided many other alternatives. Not only could students participate in band and orchestra, but htey could also learn to perform in one of the several choirs.

As well as the band and orchestra performing in many of their own concerts, they also did back up music for productions like Brigadoon.

Choir provided students with the opportunity to perform in such groups as the Warrenaires, Windsors, Trebletones, Chantelles, Crystalaires, and Madrigals.

Besides actual participation on stage, students could also learn stagecraft skills.

"Mr. Ramsey Gibson, stage director and instructor, said,"My students need to learn anything and everything about the Performing Arts Center. They do designing, lighting, sound, unloading trucks, and everything inbetween."

For some, their experiences in the PAC can make the difference in a career choice.

"The background the PAC gave me will help if I go on to dance school or college," said Kerri Thompson.

High tech training mixed with basics

Many areas and types of math are offered and taught here at Warren, but the fact remains that some students as well as adults sometimes look at math as being boring, mind-boggling, and an unnecessary nuisance. However, math classes are indeed a very important part of the high school years.

Among the most popular classes offered here which most students at one time or another take are algebra, geometry, and some form of a computer class. Because Warren requires two years of completed math upon graduation, the first two are taken by almost every student.

Although many students take only the required amount of math during their high school years, many go on in high school to take such advanced classes as Unified Math and Calculus.

However, with the present growing computer revolution, many students seem to flow into the high tech courses offered. At Warren, students as well as adults at night classes have the opportunity to take classes which vary from data processing to computer programming.

Computer Math teacher Ron Benz helps a student with a program.

Reasons as to why students feel computer classes were necessary to be taken was best summed up by junior Melanie Thomas: "Since tis is a computer revolution, people should adopt to the changes that are taking place. I feel that it wouldn't be wise not to take some sort of course associated with computers because you read everyday that more and more jobs are being replaced by computers.

When asked if the computer would have any effect on their futures, and if so where would it effect them, most students started to talk about future occupations as did senior Lisa Lukens when she said, "Well, it seems like every business is starting to use computers for inventory, payroll, and to send information from one company to another. This experience will help me in finding a job that is with a good company and one that pays well."

Although each studetn at Warren is required to have had completed only two years of math upon graduation, math is a major area of education. With classes ranging from algebra to calculus and from introduction to computer programming to data processing, students have a variety of courses to choose from when making their schedules.

However, the fact that Warren offers many different classes and has the largest educational computer terminal in the Midwest is not important. In contrast, as junior Kim Spilker said, "The importance of math is that it is and should be a major part of anyone's high school career."

Although the majority of the computers used at Warren Central and throughout the entire township are Apples, some students receive training on other computers.

With the progression of the high tech era, Warren Central and its students like this one have expanded their study of computers.

Catherine Scherer, an algebra and introduction to computer programming teacher, uses the laws of geometry in an algebra lecture.

Not only did geometry students learn various laws of the math, but they also learned how to put the laws into geometric proofs.

A Walker Career Center student works on her computer program as part of her math credit.

When playing the mind game word association, the word "vocational" may flash through the mind with the phrase "Walker Career Center." Tapping further into the brain vault, "vocational" is often linked to the words "job" and "career." Indeed, this is what so many students found different about the Walker Career Center.

According to Vocational Counselor, Mr. Bill Porter approximately 35-40 percent of the students who enroll in vocational courses go directly into the working world with the Center's training and background. Others might attend technical school or college.

Mr. Porter said, "The key point is not how well the career center prepares the students, but how much a student puts into all the classes have to offer. For example, if a student works hard and is conscientious of his trade, the training he receives here will make him well prepared to go out and start an apprenticeship."

Machine shop/Mechanical Drafting and Airbrush instructor Mr. Joel Woelfe said that each year many of the drafting students go directly from the class into a drafting job. "Some go into a field that requires the drafting background such as mechanical engineering."

What kind of professional training did the career center have to offer? Many of the classes provided an opportunity for students to directly serve the community. Examples of this were the Threshold (Food Services), Horticulture, Child Care, Vocational Painting, Electronic Technology, WEDM, Auto Body Repair, Auto Mechanics, and Building Trades.

Other classes such as Mechanics, Welding, Machine Trades, Diesel Mechanics, Business Management, Computer Processing, etc., did not directly serve the township, but trained students to utilize their skills in outside jobs.

One such class was Marketing/Business Management class. Class instructor, Mr. Tim Armstrong said, "This is the only class that qualifies as a cooperative class. Instead of a three hour block, the students spend one hour a day in class and work in a store, restuarant, or business outside of school."

Mr. Armstrong continued, "Over the years, many students who graduate have kept their same job they had for this class. If the students keep their same job, most of them end up majoring in some field of business."

Another vocational course that had a high career placement was the Dental Assisting class. "Most of the students that leave here find immediate jobs in this field," Mr. Porter said. "Our dental program has a very fine reputation in the community, and many dentists are aware of the program."

Mr. Porter also believes that classes like Computer Programming and Electronic Technician provide a strong ground work for those students who are college bound.

It always pays to be prepared. With that thought in mind, a large number of students signed up for college prep courses this year.

"It's hard work that takes a lot of time," junior Brian Reno said. Presently taking chemistry, algebra, Great Books, and derivitives, Reno also that it would be well worth the effort if he goes to college.

College preparatory courses are based on college entrance requirements and special skills. "Students that do well in these courses will do well in college," Mr. William Glesing, guidance counselor, said.

"Comp and Research is designed to prepare students for college composition work," said Mr. Neal Shortz, English teacher.

Taking a semester of English Literature, junior Brenda Kordes said, "It is interesting because I studied Old English and Shakespearean plays which I didn't have in other English courses."

In psychology, writing techniques and tests are quite similar to college work. Basic concepts of psychology are included and career opportunities are dealt with.

Students are actually given access to law libraries on college campuses for their debate research. Debate and Discussion is similiar to college course work in several ways, with students being given much freedom. The instructor informs them of their assignments and they are given two weeks to work on them.

Mr. Harry Preston feels college prep courses should be scaled by degree of difficulty to give students incentive to take more difficult courses. Next year that scaling will be done for the first time. Students will be given a percent bonus for taking many of the college prep courses. But for some student, the incentive is already there...success at college.

Students design individual work

By Sylvia Warren

The aroma of paint blending with clay lingered on. Paintings, sketches, and collages decorated the bulletin boards above the dull brown lockers. To many art students this was the hall they spend at least an hour in everyday.

"It's a statement made by an individual that reflects his feelings that he wants to convey to somebody else," is commercial art teacher Clyde Foster's definition of art.

These reflections could be seen throughout the halls of Warren Central and the community. The advertisements we saw that publicized school events such as the patriotic pageant "In Celebration: An American Dream" and Homefest were the creation of Mr. Foster's commercial art students.

As part of a class assignment students designed ads and programs. Mr. Foster stated that these were practical assignments. "Whatever they're working on has a chance to be used," he said.

Junior Jeddy Lewis felt that this was the best aspect of taking commercial art "The opportunity we get to draw advertisements for activities at school."

Stereotypes come up every place in society and the art department was by no means an exception. Thought of as a place for non-academic students, Mr. Foster felt that this was not the case.

In another art class the scene was a little different. Their displays were three dimensional. Students pounded out the clay in Ms. Paula Novotny's ceramic class, creating anything from pots to beautiful works of art.

Sitting at a table spinnng balls of clay into lovely three dimensional objects was not the only thing ceramic students learned in Ms. Novotny's class.

"The way my class is set up is that it teaches students to make choies," she said. "They have certain responsibilities they are in charge of. It helps them cope with everyday life."

"The major change in the business education deparment was the addition of a word processing course. There are twelve word processing stations now. It really is a big addition," said Mrs. Betty Poindexter, assistant principal of Walker Career Center.

Other courses are planned for the future, and according to Mrs. Poindexter, accounting may be in for some new approaches.

"Automated offices seem to be the new trend in business education. Machines and computers are doing things such as filing, which took quite a while for people to do the old way," she added.

The number of students enrolled in business education courses has steadily increased over the past few years, Mrs. Poindexter said.

"Three years ago is when we really saw the increase in students. That was when factories started laying off workers and eventually closing down. The local economy and industry really seemed to effect the attitude of students.

"Students are taking vocational classes very seriously now. They see that there are good ways to really learn a skill, Mrs. Poindexter said.

At the end of the school year, Mrs. Vanila Lockwood, chairman of the department, retired. A new chairman was not appointed at that time.

Like most vocational areas, business education must make many changes to keep us with the times.

Students involved in the department's courses will have the opportunity to be a part of those changes.

Like Mrs. Poindexter said, students are taking vocational courses very seriously these days.

Electives follow students' interests

By Julie Mattingly

Access to a wide variety of unique classes is one benefit that Warren Central offers, as well as Walker Career Center.

In 1983-84, there were several new classes added to the schedule. Among the new were Studio Production and Individual Sports and Training. Studio Production is an art specialization program which allows students to study their field of interest from 1 to 3 hours per day. Individual Sports and Training was offered as a marshall arts class for all students.

For those who prefer the tried and true, Derivatives, Thanatology, business law, and psychology were available.

Derivatives, which is classified as a language course, included the study of Greek and Latin roots, suffixes and prefixes. Junior Sandy Klenotic said, "I'm expanding my vocabulary. I see and hear words and I know what they mean because of the class."

Another popular elective was Thanatology. Classified as an English class, the class covered an unbiased view of death. In addition, the class helped students better understand death.

Taught in the Career Center, business law helped students realize their rights and responsibilities. While psychology delved into the depths of the human mind.

Daredevils who wanted a real challenge investigated Spelunking or Gourmet Chef. "I liked the class. I learned alot about living off the land, making fires, and knots," said sophomore science of survival student David Stark.

With a well rounded curriculum and enthusiastic students, the electives programs guarantee students an interesting education.

Survival offered unique summer

By Josie Soliven

Although still offered during the regular school year, the popular summer school Survival courses has been discontinued in the summer of 1984 during to a cutback in budget.

Students who want to participate in this unique opportunity must now fit it into their regular schedule.

Summer survival gave the students who chose to take the course the opportunity to go hiking, caving, canoeing and camping at the cost of 40 dollars. In addition to doing all of those activities, the student had the opportunity to earn a science credit while having fun. Senior Ric Elixman said, "I thought it would be a change from my usual summer activities."

Students from Warren were not the only ones involved in the class. Matt Simcox, a senior at New Palestine said, "I took the class just for the sheer fun of it. I really had a blast!"

"Summer survival isn't just to get a science credit. It also gives the students a chance to have fun and to meet new students that otherwise they would have never met," said instructor Mr. Bruce James.

The students had the chance to take overnight trips. Of course they always were under the supervision of instructors, Mr. Bruce James and Mr. Frank Bynum. "The only problems we experience with the students is the fact that some of them had trouble carrying their backpacks over a 20 mile distance," said Mr. James.

This type of work is the fun kind where one can apply it to skills that are learned in the classroom. Setting up a tent takes a lot of energy and time. The only thing a student probably won't enjoy in the class is getting mosquito bites!

How many weddings have you attended when the bride and groom are decided upon by a drawing?

That is exactly what happened when students in Mrs. Louise Spilker's Marriage and Family Living class participated in a mock wedding.

For two years students have been discovering what takes place when planning a wedding and what it would be like to be in a wedding.

Brides Etc., a local store, provides the wedding tuxes and dresses and flowers and cake.

Mrs. Spilker feels the project is very worthwhile and is very helpful to students in thinking about their own marriage plans.

Other projects students participate in to help prepare for family living come from a Quest Program out of the National Center.

In the fall of 1984 Mrs. Spilker will be retiring after seeing her classes through one more wedding experience. It is an experience that she will miss, but Mrs. Delores Adamovich will continue the project.

Another fun but educational project is when student treat eggs like they are their children for several days.

Many students can relate to "tragic" experiences like dropping their children and seeing them shatter against the floor or having someone sit on them during classtime.

Egg children reflected their "parents" individual tastes as they were dressed and provided with touches of comfort.

Mrs. Pat Frankin, media para-professional, said that one student asked her to babysit her egg while the student did library assistant work.

Since Mrs. Franklin did not have time to egg-watch, along with her library duties, the student finally put her "child" in a drawer for safe keeping.

Whether it was the crazy fan crying as the team lost by a few points, or whether it was the one who scored the points or even the one who sat on the bench, sports were often in the center of the stage. The wrestling team moved into Semi-State the same week that the girls basketball team moved into Regionals. The State wrestling meet was followed by the girls capturing second place in the state only one week later. Behind the Scenes

There's another half to Dick Conway's boys cross country team and he comes in the form of Joe Brooks. Aside from being assistant varsity coach, Brooks is also the junior varsity coach. He is no stranger to the cross country scene.

Brooks is a 1978 graduate of Butler University where he also ran cross country. He then went on to teaching and started out as a math teacher at Woodview Junior High where he also coached cross country. When Woodview shut its doors for the last time in 1981, Brooks was moved to Warren Central, where he teaches geometry and beginning and advanced math.

In 1981 Coach Brooks started the Polar Bear Club, which is a winter time club meeting and running outdoors even the time of frigid weather.

Junior Sean Harshey said, "I didn't know him that well over at Woodview, but when he came to Warren along with me and the rest of the freshman class, I had him as a teacher and really thought he's a neat guy. He is easy to get along with. When I got interested in running and found that he was the sponsor, I didn't think twice about running."

Joe Brooks, behind the scenes, is teacher, coach, club sponsor and the student's friend.

Top 20 ranking paced by Jackson

By Shaun McDonald

When the boys cross country team began their season, Head Coach Dick Conway had two goals in mind: winning County and being contenders for a State Championship. They were indeed contenders for a high state placement, but the County Championship managed to elude them.

Senior Ken Jackson headlined the team with several credits and wins to his name. Jackson through one season managed to accumulate such wins as 3-time All-Around champion, 3-time Sectional Champion, All Semi-State, Individual Regional Champion and Individual winner of the Fort Wayne Invitational.

Team performance was rated highly by Coach Conway alongside a spot in the top 20 ranked cross country teams throughout most of the season. Conway's squad managed a 90-14-2 record, which converts to a 90 percent win ratio.

Although the season was dominated by Jackson, there were five other seniors in Jackson's shadow; seniors, Dave Watts, Dennis Papenmeier, Brad Beaumont, Terry Pratt and John Butler.

At the Hokum Karum held at Southeastway Park, the team of Ken Jackson and Terry Pratt led the Warren runners with a 30:10 and a 5th place finish. Tom Rodden and Steve Griffin teamed up to capture the 6th place position one second behind Jackson and Pratt.

Finishing, Warren placed 2nd out of 21 schools with a total team score of 91:50.8. Led by only one other runner, Ken Jackson brought honors to himself and Warren when he finished 2nd at the Shelbyville Invitational. There were four other runners that also finished in the top ten; Tom Rodden came in with a fourth place finish, Brad Beaumont came in with a fifth and Pratt and Papenmeir with 6th and 10th.

Behind the Scenes

By Kelly Hartman

Often there are people who help with an athletic team and are not always recognized by outsiders. Even those on the team may not recognize the sacrifice involved.

The girls cross country team was fortunate enough to have two people who volunteered their time to help the team.

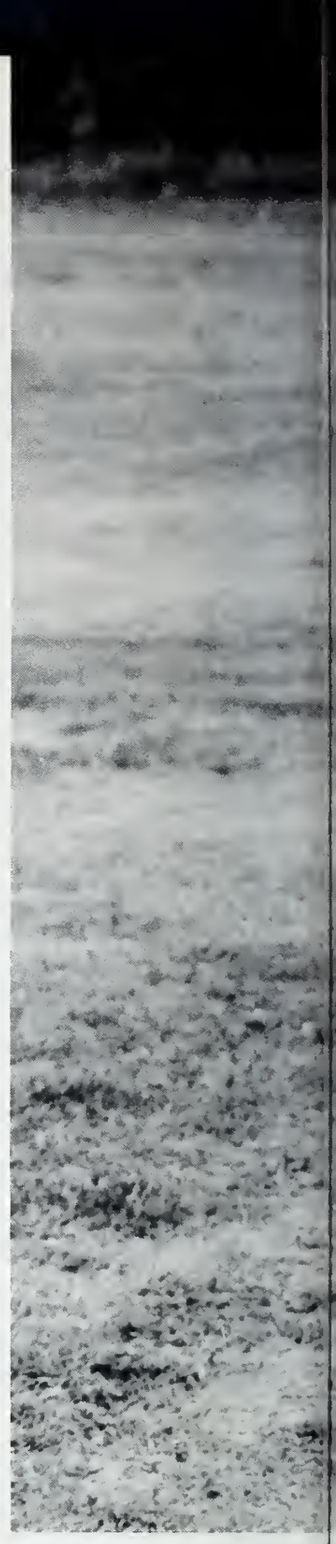
Mr. Leon Carter and Ms. Cathy McAtee both agreed that not only did they enjoy running to help and encourage the girls, but they also enjoyed the extra exercise.

It also helped them to build relationships with the girls who planned to run track later in the year. Ms. McAtee and Mr. Carter are both assistant track coaches.

Ms. McAtee, a special education teacher says that not only did she encourage the girls on the team, but many times they returned encouragement. She said, "It was really fun being able to watch the girls improve through the season."

The Dean of Student Services at Heather Hills Elementary, and father of four, Mr. Carter found time to help with the team too. He also coached soccer at Eastwood Junior High School in Washington Township.

Experiencing much of the same pains that those on the team did, both of them generously gave of themselves for the betterment of team members.



Girls C. C.

Best season ever reaches Regionals

By Kelly Hartman

With the leadership of junior Mary Fazio and sophomore Lynne Coval and total team effort throughout the season, the girls cross country team made their 1983 season one of success.

With two major goals kept in mind,they strived to win and conquered them both.

Hoping to place at least fifth in the County meet and fourth in Sectionals, the team definitely had their work cut out for them. But determined, they tackled the challenge and were granted their wish - team advancement to Regional competition.

Third was the best place a girls team had ever finished in Sectional competition before.

Another of the many successes for the team was their first ever perfect score of 15. This was scored in a three-way meet against Muncie Central and Anderson Madison Heights.

With only one senior, Lisa Carnes, the Lady Harriers should see an even more successful season in 1984. Coach Fox said that the team's experience will play an important role next season.

Top competitors other than Fazio, Coval, and Carnes, included sophomore Teresa Likens and returning letterman Jill Bodenreider, a junior.

Coach Woody Fox rewarded his team in a unique way. If an individual improved her best time, she was given a tootsie pop. Sometimes if outstanding achievement was shown by the entire team, everyone was awarded one. Warrior head decals were also given if Coach Fox felt the girl had done something else outstanding.

Not only is senior Lori Castetter an accomplished athlete, but she is also a talented dancer. Lori is known throughout Warren Central for being the Most Valuable Player in both volleyball and basketball, but hardly anyone relates her with dancing. "I take dancing to help me in basketball and for coordination, " Lori commented.

Starting at the beginning of her junior year, Lori has already won a first place in her first competition in the hustle category. She also can do many other dances such as ballroom, rumba, and the fox trot. She said, "I like the hustle because it's more modern, and everyone does it."

Lori started dancing at the Dawn Renne Dance Studio, but she recently switched to the Carmel Ballroom. Her private instruction takes place once a week for a one hour session.

For a young lady who was voted most valuable in both volleyball and basketball, Lori's "behind the scenes" dancing is a unique twist to her sports career.

After three years, girls find success

By Stephanie Blake

After three years of being in the Sectional finals, the varsity girls volleyball team finally came out the victor. "I felt we went into the tournament comfortable and confident. Physically, we passed, set, hit, and blocked better than we had in a long time, " Coach Barbara Guhl said.

The girls went into the the tournament ranked sixth in the state, and they peaked as high as fourth in the polls earlier in the season. In the first round of the Sectionals, the Lady Warriors defeated Arlington, 15-3, 15-8. Sectional rival Chatard was beaten by the team in the semi-finals, 15 - 8, 15 - 8. They breezed through the finals by defeating Lawrence North, 15-1, 14-6, to capture the Sectional crown.

Finishing the season 28-5, the Lady Warriors acquired the best record ever in volleyball at Warren Central. The team also won the Roncalli, Columbus East, and Speedway Invitationals.

The biggest disappointment for the team this season was losing to Ben Davis in the County finals, 10-15, 13-11, 7-15."The County championship was a goal of ours; that's why it was such a hard defeat," Coach Guhl commented.

Experience and togetherness were two aspects which make the Lady Warriors' season very successful, according to Coach Guhl. For the second year in a row, Lori Castetter won the Most Valuable Player Award. Castetter also won the Best Offensive Player Award, and Stephanie Blake won the Best Defensive Plater Award. Shawn Sebert won the Golden Heart Award and Cindy Mohr had the best mental attitude.

Three team members were selected to the All-County first team. These platers were Castetter, Blake, and Stacy Rathbun. Mohr was an Honorable Mention, All-County team member.

Behind the Scenes

With 30 years as only the highlight of a long to come great reign of coaching is Mr.Lyman Combs. Mr.Combs, who is the varsity boys tennis coach, has been interested in coaching since he has been in high school.

He has coached tennis at four different schools. Those schools include Howe, Arlington, Woodview Junior High, and,of course, Warren. Being at Warren for the past four years has brought forth rewarding and worthwhile coaching experiences, said Coach Combs.

While in high school Mr.Combs' basketball and football coaches had a lot to do with him becoming a coach. With his admiration toward his coaches, he went to college and worked toward being a coach and a teacher. From there he moved on to various schools starting up teams of tennis and filling in other coaching positions.

Mr.Combs is now a counselor at Stonybrook Junior High. He enjoys tennis and coaching tennis. He said,"I enjoy working with young men." He continued to say,"It always has been interesting and fun."

Sectional finals highlight season

By Kathi Pfluger

Ending the season with a 14-6 mark, the boys tennis team finished with their best record yet. Junior Tom Gunderman said,"I think we did pretty good this season." He went on to say,"Each year we keep building to get better."

Going all the way to finals of sectionals was a major accomplishment for the team. They started out in the first and second rounds easy winners over Scecina and Decatur Central, 5-0 each match. Then in the finals the team went against a top ranked and tough Park Tudor and were defeated 0-5.

It's only losing match was to a rated team. Warren's tennis team was coached by Mr.Lyman Combs, a counselor at Stonybrook Junior High, and assistant coach Mr.Mark Meier of Lakeside Elementary.

The noted strong points of the team were how they were balanced. "We counted on everybody to win," stated Gunderman. The individual players and double teams all ended with marks over 500.

Senior Rob Strauss was team captain for the 1983-84 season . While best doubles and singles players were Bret Bohlman, Doug Brown, and Sunny Park respectively, other team members were senior Keith Ball, juniors Tom Gunderman, Ken Ka, and Jim Forreick.

At the end of their season, the junior varsity finished with 8-1 record. Members of the team were top three singles players sophomores Trey Otjen, David Holt, and Marc Carlson, sophomores Harry Sering, Mike Finkbiner, Chris McGuire, and John Mead.

Improving every year is always a team's goal. As for the boys tennis team, the last three years have been building years for better improvement each year. Looking to next year's season this team should be tough as they will have five returning lettermen and strong j.v. members filling the varsity spots.

Girls Golf

New coach supports golfers

With strong senior leadership and a lot of hard work, the girls golf team had a successful season. "Even though our record wasn't very good, we still had a good time," commented Lisa Olding. Senior Lynn Peters led the team as the best golfer with 54 average for nine holes.

With the leadership of Peters and the support of two other seniors, Felicia Elbert and Lisa Olding, the team took eighth in sectionals, city, and county. Others on the team were junior Carrie Schultz, sophomore Robin Mitchell, and freshmen Lisa Sweany and Dawn Kelly.

During the opening weeks of the season they won their first match against Ben Davis by a score of 205 to 219, but their season took a turn for the worst, losing the rest of their matches.

Not having one real strong player dampened their chances of advancement to the regionals, although they placed ninth out of 11 teams in the Sectional Tournament on Oct. 2 at Sycamore Springs.

Senior Lisa Olding commented that if the freshmen and junior Carrie Shultz had not come out, they would have had only four people playing. "We can't worry about that though," she said, "Golf is not a popular sport."

Even though the girls golf team is losing the top three girls to graduation, Coach Diamond Hayes says the outlook for the next year remains good. He commented,"The girls have been a pleasure to work with."

Behind the Scenes

Seldom is there a coach who has played the sport for 42 years. Mr. Diamond Hays, the girls golf coach, is one of those exceptions.

A retired Walker Career Center teacher, this was his first year to coach the team. He was offered the position after Ms. Wolff made the decision to resign after the 1982-83 season.

Coach Hays has been quite successful in tournament play in past years. Along with being the coach of the 1957 boys State Champion team from Shortridge High School, he has been involved with the state tournament the past nine years.

Aside from coaching, teaching night school and playing golf most of the time, Mr. Hays also enjoys caligraphy and gardening.

Stumbling on golf by chance, Mr. Hays was introduced to golf in junior high. After playing golf with some friends one weekend, he convinced his mother to let him use the money he had been saving the past two years for a new bike. He took that money from the bank and bought some new clubs. He has been playing constantly ever since then.

After not knowing what to expect from the girls team, Mr. Hays claimed to be pleasantly surprised with the results.

Behind the Scenes

Question : What weighs 1905 pounds and has the strength of ten men ? To an avid fan of the Warrior football, the answer to that question is an easy one. Only the 1983 Warren offensive line had that much size.

With three seniors Gary Bacon, Dave Herrick, and John Gegner and two juniors Jason Whitlock and Richard Lasley, the Warren line won the respect of fan and foe alike. Affectionately named "Land of the giants" because of the massive line. Warren compiled an over all season record of 8-2.

"Yeah, we were big and strong," said junior offensive tackle Whitlock, "but we didn't move slow even with our size." He is right. Warren backs covered 40 yards in about 4.6 seconds. Outweigning the backs by at least 60 pounds, the line could cover the 40 in about five seconds or less. Pretty good for someone that big.

If speed gets you where you want to go, then strength gets you respect when you get there. The Warren line knows this point well. Just look in the school weight room. Every member of the line has max tested with a total of over 1000 pounds. Face it, the '83 line is as close as anyone is going to get to becoming Superman.

Cluster makes season frustrating

By Richard Lasley and Troy Vaughn

The 1983 varsity football season differed with the '82 season in more ways than just the date. To begin with, a new playoff system was adopted by the IHSAA for the '83 season. Called simply the "cluster system," the new playoff procedure was instigated with the hopes of being much more fair and efficient than the old system. By grouping schools into clusters of five or mini-conferences, the system got it's name.

Next on the agenda was dealing with an unusually intense August heat. The early opening of the season is when the heat did the most damage. Players were reported to have passed out due to the heat and some games were either postponed or canceled. Once again, the IHSAA stepped in and this time issued guidelines for playing in the heat. Offical time outs for rest and water were not all that uncommon in August games.

On the evening of Saturday, Oct. 22, the 10 week Warrior season came to a climax. In a three way tie with Lawrence North and Perry Meridian for a playoff spot, Warren suited up on a rainy October night to decide which of the teams would be in the playoffs. Unfortunately, the Warrior season ended that night, losing by a field goal to Lawrence North who went on to beat Perry later that evening.

A team's chances in the three way tie breaker is based mostly on luck. Going into the tie breaker Warrior Head Coach Jerry Stauffer is quoted as saying,"Teams will have to be very alert and very lucky." This was true for Lawrence North. First, the Wildcats received the luck element when Warren threw a bad pass, rare for the pass oriented Warriors. Secondly, the alert factor came into play when a Lawrence defender had the frame of mind to intercept the bad pas. A field goal later, Lawrence North defeated Warren in the first round of the tie breaker.

J.V. Warriors look to varsity play

By Richard Lasley and Troy Vaughn

While losing only one game this year to Lawrence Central 7-6, the Warriors posted an impressive 8-1 record, one of the best in the county.

Quarterback Butch Holt led the Warrior attack, throwing for over ten touchdowns. In the Lawrence Central game he attempted a sneak and broke his right ankle. In stepped converted wide receiver Kipp Konce. Konce led the team to victory over Southport, Marshall, and North Central.

Leading the Warrior offence were running backs Ron Clark, Tony Jones, and junior Chris Jent. Credit should also be given to sophomore linemen Jim Dixon, Tim Choate, and Tim Turner who blew open the big holes for the Warrior backs. Receiver Andy O'Brien led the Warriors in receptions while Koonce also contributed.

On the other side of the line, the defense was bolstered by middle linebacker Bubba Shrum. Defensive back Craig Cooper secured the secondary.

All in all, it was another great year for Warren. With 25 j.v. players from 1982 making the varsity squad in 1983, many young Warriors have something very bright to look for.

Behind the Scenes

Just a few weeks after the season officially ended, the members of the 1983 football squad got together on a quiet night and rehashed the events of the newly ended season.

There was nothing special about this banquet night. The evening consisted of the same old talk from players, the interception that could have been, the best game, and the game saving tackle. The dinner was almost the same and so were the awards. Four players made the All-County team, two of whom also made all state, this year.

Even though it was an ordinary banquet night, the evening did seem to hold something special for all involved. "Next year" were the two magic words that were not only spoken but felt throughout the room. It was preparation time again. The weight room was ready and everyone was ready to start the work all over again. It was time for the juniors to don the responsibility of the graduating seniors. Another long hot summer lay ahead with miles of sprinting and tons or weight lifting. All in anticipation of a night in August when a whistle is blown and a football is kicked to start the clock.

Winning attitude pushes swimmers

By Ann Peat

Splashing their way to victory, the girls swim team enjoyed a successful season. During that season they gained plenty of impressive wins, including a 6th place in the county tourney.

Led all season by senior captain April Priest, the Lady Warriors kept a good attitude which paced them to a record of 4 wins and 9 losses, putting them just below 500 percent.

"Our attitude was really good and that helped us a lot," said junior diver Jamie Poland. The good attitude was something that was stressed all season long by Head Coach Jim Cabel, and assistants Jan Cabel and Bob Hoffman.

The team highlights were wins over Speedway, Lebanon, Martinsville and Decatur Central.

Head coach Jim Cabel said,"I was real pleased with the girls all year long. They did what we wanted, kept a good attitude, and did a good job."

The high point of the season for senior captin April Priest, came when she broke many school records. Among these records were the 200 yd. individual medely, and freestyle, and the 100 yd. butterfly, freestyle, and backstroke."I think I helped the team by broadening my ability by entering more events," said April.

Behind the Scenes

For the last six years the Lady Warriors swimming team has been led by one man. Mr. Jim Cabel has pushed the girls to their personal best.

"He really makes the season fun for us; we all love him," said junior diver Jamie Poland.

The girls swimming team record has steadily improved since Cabel's arrival in 1978. Senior record holder April Priest said, "I think we will keep doing better; everyone's attitude keeps getting better and everyone is having more fun."

A winning attitude is probably the one thing Mr. Cabel has stressed most over the years. That attitude produced a sixth place finish in the county tournament Oct. 22. "I think a good attitude is very important, and if we keep ours we will keep improving,"said Mr. Cabel.

Sectionals last win for senior squad

By Billy Cook

With head coach Mike Copper leading the boys basketball team at Warren Central for six years, they have won two Sectional crowns in the last three years.

The Warrior assault was led by a senior/junior duo: senior co-captain Cortland Jackson and junior Tom Foley.

With a winning slate of 15-8, the duo accounted for 33.1 points a game. Jackson averaged 18.2 points, while Foley followed with a 14.9 average his junior year.

Rebounding 5.91 boards a game and having 88 defensive rebounds was senior John Cox, while Foley averaged 5.78 boards a game and led the team in offensive boards with 54.

Senior co-captain Greg Conwell led the team in hustle points with 55, while Jackson had 63 team assists.

The team was powered by rebounding on the defensive boards. They led their opponents 498-397.

Also, the free throw shooting propelled them to victory with a .723 average, which was in the top five averages in the Indianapolis area.

After the Sectional crown was won over Scecina, 92-60, the team had various players named to All-County teams.

Senior Jackson was named to the second team, while Foley ws named to the while Foley was named to the third.

Jackson, Foley and Conwell were all named to the All-Sectional team by both the Star and News polls. Jackson was also named to the All-Regional team to cap off his high school career.

The boys j.v. basketball team ended up the season with a 7-13 record under the leadership of Joe Brooks and Don Lucas. The team was strong in defense, hustle, and a positive attitude, but lacked in free throws and outside shooting and consistent scoring.

The leading scorer for the squad was sophomore Craig Looper, while sophomore Kipp Koonce had the best free throw percentage for the team. Bringing down the most boards for the Warriors this year was sophomore Lawrence Crutcher. The defense was controlled by sophomores Looper and Andy Williams. The most improved player was sophomore Toronto Harrison, who will help the team out next year said Coach Jacobs. He also added this team is not quite as strong as ones in the past because they lacked in scoring ability.

With a 43-37 victory of Lawrence North and a 27 win over Southport, these were the best games of the year for the boys, while the 40-68 defeat by Ben Davis was the worst game.

The first Warren Central student ever to be chosen for an Indiana All-Star basketball team, Stephanie Blake is a lady of many talents.

Some of those talents pose decision problems for 'Steph,' as she is called by her friend.

"It is really hard for me to choose between volleyball and basketball. I love them both, but I think I like volleyball better," she said at one point during basketball season.

Perhaps that feeling has changed now that she had the opportunity to play and defeat the Kentucky All-Star girls in a two game series this past June.

When Stephanie arrives at Indiana Central University this fall on an athletic scholarship, that is a decision that will have to be made, as well as the courses whe will take toward a degree in Sports Medicine.

While at Warren Central, Stephanie was a senior editor on The Owl and Wigwam staffs.

Girls Basketball

State Runner-up is still heartbreak

It was a year to remember for the Lady Warrior basketball team. No one can forget the heartbreak the team suffered when they lost the State Championship in overtime to the number one ranked team in state, Crown Point. The score of this game was 55-54.

The journey to the State finals began when the Lady Warriors defeated Cathedral to win their seventh straight sectional title. They went into Regionals to beat Noblsville in the first round, and they avenged their only loss in their regular season by trouncing North Central to win their first Regional Championship.

The next step the Lady Warriors had to conquer was the Semi-State. In this round of the of the State Tournament the girls captured their first Semi-State victory by defeating Speedway and Rushville, thus leaving them to be one of the final four left to participate in the State finals at Market Square Arena.

In the first game the number five ranked Lady Warriors destroyed the number ten ranked Evansville Boose, 73-46, and they lost Crown Point in the finals. If the ball would have rolled a different way, the girls would have easily been the victors. Nobody was a loser in this tournament.

Another highlight of this season was when the Lady Warriors upset the number three ranked Howe Hornets by one point in the last game of the season. "In this game we wanted to show everyone who the best team was on the east side," senior tri-captain Stacy Rathbun said. Other captains were seniors Lori Castetter and Stephanie Blake.

The Lady Warriors also won the County Championship for the second year in a row. They defeated their rival Brebeuf in the first round, and they breezed through the rest of the tournament by beating Perry Meridian, Southport, and Speedway for the title.

This years Most Valuable Players were Blake and Castetter. Chosen for the Mental Attitude Award was senior Kim Koonce. Blake was the first player ever from Warren Central to be selected to the Indiana All-Star team.

Boys Swim

Super season reaches set goals

When the Warren Central boys swim team set goals in the early part of the season, atop the list was a first in the county, top ten in state, and to beat rival North Central.

Coach Con Keller achieved those goals this year with the help of one of the youngest teams ever in the history of Warren Central swimming and diving. Keller could not have been happier with his team's performance. "We had an excellent season with hard wotk from the total team."

The "total team" effort was also helpful with freshman from Stonybrook and Creston. Such names as Guy Ruble, Andy Pflum, John Walesky, Scott Wildauer, and Mike While, may not be household names yet, but when they become juniors and seniors, expectation will be high for a state championship.

The year was filled with many first places. Winning their Sectional for the second year in a row, winning county for the first time ever and firsts in the Warren Invitational and the North Cental Relays, were the high points.

The 200 Medley Relay team consisted of Jim Webber, Brad Ladwig, both sophomores, and Greg Ruble and Brad Harvey, placed first in Sectionals. Junior Keith Winnings placed first in the diving part while teammate Mike Lang finished second. Warren also placed members in the 200 freestyle, 50 yard freestyle, 200 individual medley, 100 yard breaststroke, 400 yard freestyle, 100 yard backstroke, 500 yard freestyle, and 100 yard freestyle all during Sectional competition.

Warren placed tenth at the State finals with many of the Warrior swimmers placing. Lang placed third in diving along with the 200 Medley team that placed in the Sectionals. Ladwig and Webber placed tenth and eleventh respectively in their events while Winnings placed thirteenth in diving. "We had a great effort from everyone at state. We went with a young group and they responded very well with the pressure of the state meet," said Coach Keller.

At the end of the season , Webber and Greg Ruble were selected as "outstanding members of the team" by their teammates.

Expectations for next year seem very high. For Coach Keller, one thing is known for sure, "We will have a team."

Behind the Scenes

There are people in the world who excell in almost anything they want. When someone puts their mind to it, they get it accomplished.

For one such sophomore, Mike Lang, success has followed him throughout his life. Through singing, dancing, commercials, acrobatics, taekwondo, soccer, acting, and diving, Mike has excelled.

Finishing third in the state in the diving competition at the State finals was a big surprise for him. "I just dived super-well there. I finished second at both county and sectionals, so finishing third at state was a big surprise."

By finishing up so high, Lang propelled his team to a tenth place finish over-all. But diving wasn't and still isn't his only talent. Lang is a member of the Dance Magic Preforming Arts Co. in Indianapolis.

You may also have seen him at various girls basketball games. He is an advanced tumbler and did many incredible feats at the televised game. When not doing this, he likes to sit at home and play the drums or the piano. "I like all types of music," said Mike.

But maybe his first love is with the television camera. Mike does television and radio comercials for companies such as Farm Bureau Insurance, McDonalds, Noble Romans, Coke, Wisconsin Job Service, and others. "I think the commercials are great! I make from around $25 to $400 a shot, so it pays off," claimed Mike. He even finds time to act and study the art of Taekwando.

With all of these talents, life is sure to treat him well; colleges are already after him for his diving abilities. One thing does bother him though. "Next year will be harder. Guys will be trying to beat me, I'll just have to try harder."

'Tower' powerful but falls at State

At the beginning of the year the Warren Wrestlers, commonly called the Tower of Power, set many goals. One of these was to defeat the defending state champs, Delta. They reached that goal at the Warren 8-way and in the regular dual match, but they were defeated for the state title.

Among the records set this year and the number one ranking, this year's team was County, Sectional, Regional, and Semi-State champions. They beat eight teams to win the Tilpton Invitational, defeated 21 to take first at Connersville, and beat State Champs Delta to take the Warren 8-way. Captained by seniors David Bridgeforth and Greg Montgomery and by junior Scott Ellis, the wrestlers held a 171-0-1 undefeated regular season record.

The grapplers are headed by Gene Nesbit, who in his ninth year of coaching led the Warriors to their best record ever. This is Mr. Nesbit's third and last year as head coach. He will be replaced by assistant coach Carmen Hurley.

The j.v. team also had a successful season with an 8-0-1 record. The team was led consistently by captains Scott Veerkamp and Bryan Seyfried. Brian Seyfried was presented with the most falls, quickest falls and most valuable award.

Behind the Scenes

For the second year in a row sophomore Cris Wagner has made it to the State Finals for girls gymnastics. Last year Chris was very successful in state competition and became 1983 State Floor Exercise Chanpion. This year her luck wasn't as great, but she finished twelvth in vaulting competition anyway.

The main reason for her success can be attributed to her early start in gymnastics. Cris started gymnastics when she was seven years old and now trains year round. In fact, her year round training is part of the reason for her not so successful year at the State meet.

"At the beginning of the year I sprained my ankle and was off for two months. That really put me behind, so I had to get back into shape pretty fast." She continued, "I wasn't even ready this year until Sectionals. Even then I wasn't at my peak of performance."

When asked about the state competition Cris said, "I was kind of upset with the judging....but that's how it goes in any sport."

Although Cris spends most of her time practicing gymnastics, she likes to jog. Even though her main intention is to build up her endurance for gymnastics, she jogs to get away from the regular routine.

Usually for most athletes, the dedication for the in season training is there, but when it comes to out of season training the support isn't there. For the determination and willingness to train year round, sophomore Cris Wagner is truly a real champion.

Girls Gymnastics

Coach cites 'lack of desire' factor

Ending their regular season with an overall record of 19-10, Head Coach Lou Anne Schwenn commented, "I feel the girls had a good experience, but they were happy to settle for something less than the best."

The girls gymnastics team finished the season setting four out of five new school records, placing fifth in county, third in Sectionals, and sending one member to Regionals who in turn qualified for state competition.

Individual awards were presented at the county tourney to senior Marsha Wilson who placed tenth in the floor exercise, junior Bobbie Morris finished ninth in vault competition, while sophomore Chris Wagner placed third on the vault, fourth on floor exercise, and fifth all-around.

At the Sectional site, Wilson placed fourth on the bars and fifth all-around. Morris finished in fifth place in vault competition. Wagner rounded out the day with a fourth place finish on the beam, third in floor competition, and second in both vault and all-around. Wagner was the nly member to advance to Regional competition s a Sectional champ on the uneven bars.

During Regional competition n Wagner placed fourth all-around, fifth in beam competition and advanced to the state meet by capturing a first on vault. At the state meet Wagner placed twelvth in vault competition.

Receiving the team's "Most Valuable Gymnast" award was Chris Wagner. Also receiving awards were Marsha Wilson, as "Most Improved", Bobbie Morris as "Best Mental Attitude," while junior Christy Cheshire collcted the "Spirit" award.

Picking up yet another award was Chris Wagner, which was decorated with the title of "Gymnast of the year".

Coach Scwhenn's expectation ns for next year's squad are good. She commented,"I am going to look for girls that have a drive to win. Positive mental attitudes first, then skill, and talent". She continued, "We may have a few freshmen that might make the difference and we'll have eight returning team members.

Top Ten set 18 new track marks

In a weather beaten season which ended with a "fantastic Sectional," in the words of Coach Woody Fox, the girls track team saw their top ten setting 18 new marks.

Indoor School Records were broken in the 60 yd. dash by Kim Wade, in the Mile Relay by Marion, Klenotic, Coval and Buckman.

Indoor Class Records were broken in the Mile by junior Mary Fazio, and in the 60 yd. Hurdles by junior Kathi Pfluger.

Outdoor Class Records were set in the 300 m Hurdles by Pfluger and in the 1600 m Run by Mary Fazio.

Outdoor School Records were broken in the 1600 m Run by Fazio and in the 300 m Hurdles by Beth Stauffer.

The girls had the best finish ever in the Southport Relays and ten individuals qualified for sectionals plus both relay teams.

Beth Stauffer qualified for Regionals in 300 m Hurdles.

Voted Most Valuable were Hurdler: Kathi Pfluger, Sprinter: Sandy Klenotic, Field: Staci Swain, and Distance: Mary Fazio. Voted Most Outstanding were sophomore Jamie Buckman, junior Mary Fazio, and senior Lisa Carnes.

The Most Improved was Chelise Martin and Sandy Klenotic won the Mental Attitude Award.

At the beginning of the season, Coach Fox was quoted in The Owl as saying, "In 1983 we worked hard early and the team was tired in May. In 1984 we plan to work on technique early and slowly build up for May. This should make a difference in our showing in County and Sectionals."

Sweat, pain bring track gains

In the area of track and field, pain, sweat and dedication are essential for better times and distances. No matter if the pain and sweat was brought on by the dashes of the fleet sprinter in search of being the first to break the tape or the lifting of heavy poundages of the weight man always in search of the perfect shot and disc form, dedication must be present to make a winner. The 1984 track team knew this well.

With a dual meet record of 6-1 and three first place invitational wins, the Warriors enjoyed one of the best seasons in recent Warren history. THe only loss of the year was a 87-39 trouncing by the second ranked state runner-up North Central Panthers. Two days after the North Central loss the Warriors went back on the war path to capture first place at the Warren Relays with an 89 point score.

At the county meet, however, the Warriors only placed a respectable 6th place out of 14 teams. The bright spot in the meet was provided by senior Dave Herrick who took the county discus title witha 147' 5.5" toss.

An 80-47 victory over Southport provided a warm-up of sorts for the sectional meet at Elwood. At the meet, the Warrior colors had shown brightly with the team scoring 91 points and winning the sectional title. Warren had two individual champions in the meet. Senior Doug Hobson flew away with the pole vault competition with a 13'6" effort. In the high jump, sophomore Calvin Harris leaped high and was victorious with 6'5".

1984 also saw the smashing of Warren records. During the year Hobson set a school vault record with 14'1'' and sophomore Lindsay Morgan dashed away in the 400 meter time of 50.1 seconds. In the relay field, the 400 meter relay team of Ron Clark, Claude Cooper, Tony Foley, and Kenny Edmondson set a new school record with 43.8 seconds.

Behind the Scenes

During the track season, the team set many new records for themselves and the school. Although the team was also excellent in the running events, it appeared that a few specific field events were particular assets to the team.

In the area of the shot put and discus throw, three names stood out for expertise. Junior Jason Whitlock, and seniors Dave Herrick and John Gegner were considered pluses to the team.

Although senior Dave Herrick was absent due to hospitalization for multiple illness, he maintained the title as defending County Champion. The title was won with a 147' 5.5" toss.

Whitlock, Herrick, and Gegner all competed well in the area. At most track meets the scores were just fractions apart.

Looking at the three, one might see why they did so well. They all possess large muscles and physical fitness.

Getting back of track, senior Tony Foley successfully jumps a hurdle.

Behind the Scenes

Not many people other than the girls tennis team knew much about the head coach, Mark Meier as he is not a teacher at Warren Central.

Eastridge Elementary School is where he spends his teaching days.

"I got started in tennis while I was in college. I guess I just got the 'tennis fever,' said Mr. Meier.

Coach Meier then worked his way up to teaching for the summer program and lessons at Warren.

When Coach Tim Armstrong approached him to be an assistant coach for the girls, he was pleased.

"I met Tim during the summer programs. I was really pleased when he asked me to join up," said Mr. Meier.

After Coach Armstrong resigned, Coach Meier became head coach with Mrs. Beth Wolff as assistant.

"It is kind of neat to teach elementary kids and then come over to the high school," Coach Meier said.

"It is really a challenge."

Weather hampers youthful team

By Ann Peat

Because of bad weather conditions this year's girls tennis team had an unusual season.

There were 15 scheduled matches, but because of rain and wind, nine were cancelled.

Most were rescheduled for later in the season, but having six out of the first seven matches cancelled made it very hard for the team.

Only having two seniors on the squad also hindered the season, with the youth and inexperience of the rest of the team.

The varsity singles positions were filled by junior Vanda Shadigian, junior Natalie Roney and junior Kim Turk.

Playing number one and number two doubles were senior Felicia Elbert, junior Ann Peat, senior Jennifer Brinigar nd junior Geri Kuehr.

Ending their weather-dampened season with a four win, six loss record, Coach Mark Meier worked with the varsity while Beth Wolff coached the junior varsity team.

With an impressive seven win, two loss final record, the junior varsity finished strong, showing great promise for next year.

Junior players were Louann Dummich, Mary Holmes, Heather Clark, Sheri Pearsey, Kerri Winnings, Liz Duff and T. J. Janisch.

Boys Golf

Fairytale ending fails second time

By Shaun McDonald

Just one year after the boys golf team won a State Championship, hopes were alive that this year's squad could repeat that fairytale ending.

About the only thing the team didn't accomplish was acquiring that second State title. Aside from that, the team had a strong season, including being crowned the 1984 Sectional champions.

With the loss of graduate Mark Bullington to Indiana University, many did not think this year's squad would fare well.

Throughout the season, Coach Gary Jacob's leading players, seniors Steve Crumlin and Greg Smith, continually fought for the number one spot.

At the first major meet, the Lebanon Invitational, Smith played the number one position and he led the Warriors to a fourth place finish out of twelve schools.

In Terre Haute at the the fifteen-school Invitational, Crumlin shot a 77 and finished third individually. Warren finished fifth as a team.

Smock Golf Course was the scene as Crumlin led the pack in a three-way Franklin Central and Decatur Central meet and shot even par. Warren finished first and Crumlin was named medalist. Freshman Tim McDonald tied for third with Smith with a 41.

Crumlin had a three-match streak where he was named medalist with Brebeuf and thirdly Lawrence North.

At the Heather Hills Invitational senior Pat Witorski led the low scoring for Warren with a 78 and Warren placed second in the meet on their own home soil of Heather Hills.

Strong and consistent playing played a major role as the Warriors captured a second place finish at the county meet held at South Grove. Senior Kevin Porter took individual honors and was named medalist with a three over par 73.

Sectionals were held at Pleasant Run Golf Course and Warren rolled over all competition to come away Sectional Champs. Crumlin was once again named medalist with his four overpar 75 and Warren shot the best of 15 schools with a 315.

Elks Country Club was the scene for Regional competition. Playing conditions were cold those last couple of days in May as temperatures only reached into the forties. But nevertheless, the team defeated the weather and 13 other schools as they finished with a second place in Regional play.

A second State championship just couldn't be reached as it slipped from the Warrior's grasp. Warren had to settle for tenth place.

A ninth place finish would have enabled the team to be eligible for All-Star picks and other awards.

Senior Kevin Porter was medalist at the South Grove meet.

Helping the team with the finer points of golf is Heather Hills pro Galen Hearth.

A strong advocate of Junior Golf, Mr. Hearth helped make it possible for the team to use Heather Hills as their home course.

His support is appreciated by school, team and coaches.

New title smells of softball's success

Closing the season as Marion County Champions, the 1984 Warren Girls' Softball team set a record of 15 wins and one loss.

After they lost the season opener against Southport, last year champs, the team went on to beat Scecina. The rest of their games resulted in 4 wins in the county tourney.

The team was led by seniors Karen Ayler, Carla Cly, Kim Estes, Joyce Limbach, Stacy Rathbun, Dawn Wright, and Lisa Olding. Juniors on the team included Crystal Cook, Tonya Eads, Stephanie Meredith, Cindy Mohr, Bobbie Morris, Cindy Payne, Carrie Schulz, and sophomore Carla Cly.

The key to the team's success was getting senior Lisa Olding back after shoulder surgery after losing senior Stacy Rathbun to illness. Olding hit .417 and had 22 RBI's in a shortened season.

Senior Carla Cly led the team in hitting .453, RBI's 27 and doubles 8. Junior Carrie Schulz led the team in scoring with 34, 2 home runs, and 4 triples. Schulz and senior Dawn Wright tied for stolen bases with 17. Junior Stephanie Meredith set a record for the most wins in one season with 12.

During the season, with 15 wins, one loss, and 110 innings, the team was honored with getting the title of Marion County Champions.

Behind the Scenes

Inclement weather and the inexperience of sophomores combined to cause some breakdowns for the junior varsity softball team after a strong start.

But the jv team completed the season with a record of four wins and six losses against primarily varsity squads from opposing schools.

The experience the team gained by playing those varsity teams proved to be quite valuable.

Coach Roger Holder saw great improvement as the season progressed.

Two tam members were awarded team awards. Sheila Mahurin received the Outstanding Defensive Player plaque and Julie Bennett was given the Outstanding Offensive Player plaque.

Besides these awards, other team members were given pins for their service to the team.

It was a good feeling on the part of the county champ varsity to look at the bench and see what was in store for the team in the coming year.

Behind the Scenes

They were not manager or player, but what they did was just as important. They were the Batmaids, a group of four girls who did various thing for the team. The members of the group were Debbi Orr, Diana Orr, Linda Baker, and Mitzi Snyder.

Debbi, the head of the program, said,"We have a really good time working on items for the team. We run the scoreboard, concession stands, equipment, and sometimes line the fields."

The most important influence on the Orr sisters was their father, John Orr who acted as assistant coach. Debbi said,"My father got me into it when I was 6 or 7 years old. We started out working for a summer league and when we got to Warren, we just went on into helping the varsity team."

Pride and accomplishments of the season were the main reward that the sisters took with them. "We had a great year! I just wished that we would have gone farther,"said Debbi.

Baseball

Titles, records reflect success

In recent years at Warren Central, the baseball program has been very successful. In 1982, the National League drafted catcher John Henley who now plays for Indiana Central University.

In 1984, the Warriors broke numerous records enroute to their most successful season ever. Taking county, their own sectional, and the top ranked teams such as Perry Meridian and North Central, the year proved to be something that would not be forgotten all too soon.

Though the season came to an abrupt end with a 2-1 loss against Carmel in the Regionals, junior Tom Foley looked upon the season as a good year. Foley said, "We played real well. We broke a lot of school records and really should of won that Carmel game, but that is how it goes sometimes."

This year's team was faced with eight seniors: David Browning, Randy Burdsall, James Cordwell, Jim Dalton, Tim Keller, Steve Marcinko, Tim O'Reilly and Kent Schroder all played up to what they could. Browning participated in the 10th annual IHSBCA Hall of Fame series in LaPorte, Indiana on July 14-15. He was only ther third player to receive this award in Warren history. Browning led the team in appearances at the plate, hits, doubles, and he supported a .390 average all through the year.

In the power department, Foley destroyed all records set there. He hit seven homeruns this year, two in one game against Lawrence Central. He led the team in RBI's with 34, and in triples with five. O'Reilly and Marcinko both eclipsed the .400 marks for the year.

One statistic that stands out that the team set for the year was the impressive 19 game winning streak. During that span of time, the Warriors defeated the number 1 ranked North Central 10-5. While being one of the main highlights of the year, Coach Foreman believes that the county and sectional titles were much more important. "That was our goal from day one," he said.

In the pitching department, O'Reilly again paced the team. Going 48 2/3 innings on the year he struck out 66 while only giving up 31 hits. Browning, Burdsal, and Foley all chipped in.

Clubs relate to athletics

Soccer Team
Bowling Club
Bicycle Club
Girls' FCA

Sports can include the tall, slim basketball player who makes every basket, the muscular football player, and the fast soccer player, bicyler, or bowler. During the year, sports clubs were part of student life. In addition to the Soccer Team, Bowling Club, and Bicycle Club, Girls' FCA was also important to sports.

For soccer enthusiast's, the Soccer Team played in the fall and again in the spring. Senior Eric Leming served as captain for the year with help from Scott Jeske. Coach John Redfern helped the team become a success. Two team members, Kevin Zeyen and Carl Abbott played in two leagues during the year. One league was for high school, and the other was for under 19.

Another popular sports related club was Bowling Club. Sponsored by Mr. Tardy, Gayle Goshen served as president for the year. Senior Charlie Beatty was secretary and was responsible for all league records. The club bowled 24 Wednesdays during the school year, September through March. At the end of the season, the club held a banquet where trophies and awards were disbursed.

The Bicycle Club offered students interested in bicycling with a related club. The club was sponsored by Mr. Wright and Matt Taylor acted as president. Throughout the year, the club planned bike trips, a trip to the velodrome, and fund raising rides.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter of girls met during the year. Girls' FCA held fund raisers and sold sun catchers. In addition, the club held a UNICEF collection. Another duty of the club was to totally support girls' athletics. Retreats in the fall and spring were held in southern Indiana.

The show included more than a one time appearance at school. It was the way we did everything, and activities were a major part of our lives. It included academic clubs like foreign language clubs and Honor Society, athletic clubs like the soccer club, vocational clubs like Car Club and OEA, and it certainly included clubs that were purely for fun. Through these clubs we excelled in contests and competitions that were as serious as DECA competing at district, or they were just as lighthearted as a game of softball at an afternoon picnic. These clubs were where many found their lead roles and others found their crew positions. Groups make school fun

Student Council
Peer Facilitators
Thespians

As the school year began, plans for the year's activites were being carefully thought out by the Student Council, Peer Facilitators, and Thespian Society.

Student Council members began the year with Homecoming. The week began with a sheet contest and powder puff football game, and ended with the parade and queen crowning. Interweaved throughut the week were dress days such as Twins Day.

The winter blahs have been a problem in recent years, but again came Spirit Week. Included in the week was the Boy's Beauty Contest and dress days like Beach Bum Day.

Later came the end of the year and Senior Week. In honor of Wayne White, the group, along with PTSA, sponsored a benefit basketball game. At the game, seniors were given the opportunity to compete against teachers. Also included in the week was the annual Senior Olympics where seniors competed in various events such as the wheelbarrow race. Capping off the week was the annual junior-senior prom entitled Heaven.

Another service oriented group was Peer Facilitators. These students were found in the intervention room aiding their peers in many ways. Daily activities included the tutoring program, new student orientation, extended illness homework, and lost and found.

In addition to these activities, the group planned such activities as Grandparents Day, Hug-a-Warrior Day, and Teacher Appreciation Day.

The school purchased a message board that was housed in the cafeteria. The group was in charge of programming the board which was named SIMON. The board posted announcements and birthdays.

"Our main objective is to exercise positive influences, and to better communications between students and teachers," Mr. Mike Copper said.

Headed by Mr. Thom Feit, the Thespian Society sold spices in order to produce plays for the school year. In addition to the one-act plays, "Voices From the High School," and "The House at Pooh Corner," the group produced the musical Brigadoon.

"Although there are no Thespian chapters at the college level, colleges recognize that you have an interest in theater and the ability to do the work," said Mr. Thom Feit.

Societies strive for goals

Honor Society
PTSA
Art Honor Society

by Susie Chappell

Serving the school and the community were objectives of the National Honor Society, Art Honor Society, and PTSA.

National Honor Society was comprised of junior and senior students. Along with a 95 and 93 average respectively, students had to set examples in scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Mr. Herb Korra, co-sponsor , said, "Honor Society recognizes students who have achieved a great deal not only in scholarship, but who are recognized by the faculty and administration for character, service, and leadership."

Honor Society held many activities throughout the year under the advisement of Herb Korra and David Sausser. Assisting them were the club officers, Deena Orr, President; Mike Melloh, Vice-President; Linda Helzer, Treasurer; Chinta Guneratne, Secretary; and Laura Abner, tutoring. Such activities as the tutoring program, a hayride, and a picnic were included in the schedule. In order to raise club funds, the group held an inventory at Block's Southern Plaza. Following Senior Olympics, the society held a ice cream social for senior members.

Next year, the Honor Society will undergo a few changes. Students will be required to perform service projects for the community. "I'm glad to see the change, it will let us use all of our talents," stated Mr. Korra.

Warren's National Art Honor Society served the community by painting murals for Washington Square. The club received approximately $100 per mural which was used for a ski and canoe trip.

Michelle Rowe, senior, said, "Art Honor Society let's us get involved and have fun at school."

Under the direction of Mr. Clyde Foster, the group travelled to Chicago and hopes to rent a cabin in the future

A new club this year was the PTSA Club. Sponsored by Leo Hine and Vickie Johnson, the club held fund raisers and sponsored the Wayne White Benefit Basketball Game.

The purpose of the PTSA according to senior Scott Malia, is, "To benefit the school, the community and people of the area. We hope to help improve things that need it."

In the fall, the club held a picnic to encourage membership. During the winter they held a poster project which raised close to $200.

Along with Hugh Boger, Bill Hughes, Joann Lewis and Steve Crumlin, the team was able to sponsor the activities. However, Scott attributes the start of the club to Mrs. Betty Coval, PTA President, and Mr. Clifford Gates.

WEDM, publications get the story out like pros

by Richard Lasley

Radio has come a long way. From the funny little wooden box that brought the family of the 20's and 30's together in the evening hours, to the major hi-tech world of broadcast today, radio is now a major part of the mass media machine. To prepare students for a career in that major machine, Warren has WEDM, 91.1 on the FM dial.

The Warren station is totally operated by students, who hold such titles as public affairs director, sports director, and production director. Station manager Tim Renshaw advised and ran the station along with the students.

The format at WEDM can be considered quite creative and professional. Such programs as Coaches Corner, where Warren coaches are interviewed about team highlights, and a Teacher d.j. Night make up the format that is both fun and creative.

From a sports point of view of the station, WEDM has broadcast live from many Warren sporting events and enjoys the distinction of having the priviledge of broadcasting live from MSA at the Girls' State Basketball Championship. "We were the first high school allowed to do that," said staff member senior Steve McKinley.

On the other less technical side of the mass media coin, there is the Warren Publications Staff. Both the Owl and Wigwam received various awards from Columbia University and Ball State University, as well as other organizations.

With co-chairman of the editorial board being Debbie Harner and Deena Orr, the Owl was published on a bi-weekly basis. The staff often worked nights, after school, weekends, and vacations in order to get the job done.

The Wigwam was also part of the staff's coordinated efforts. Staffers were faced with the task of meeting newspaper deadlines and keeping up with yearbook work at the same time. The yearbook covered everything from student life to academics. The leadership of the yearbook was directed by Mrs. Taylor and editors Amy Wright and Beth Topliffe.

A combination of both the Owl and Wigwam, the Quill and Scroll Club was active in the duration of the time. To raise money for scholarships, the groups held a mum sale during Homecoming. Four seniors were awarded scholarships to continue their education in journalism.

Cheerleaders support spirit of Warren Central

by Billy Cook

"Cheerleaders should be the spirit of Warren Central. Their chosen to get the student body to support football and basketball. We have also been given the role of spirit leaders of all other sports," said Susie Grenda, cheerleader sponsor at Warren Central.This is the final year of her eight years as sponsor of the cheerleaders. Mrs. Grenda said that it has been probably one of the most fulfilling aspects of teaching in education. She also added it has been an honor and great fun. The girls are outstanding, their school leaders, and are positive forces.

This years crop of cheerleaders consisted of eight returning girls from last year, five seniors and three juniors. Senior Dawn Ballard headed the squad that took first place in the Blocks' Cheerleaders Competition n that was worth $1,000. The j.v. squad was made of six new incoming sophomores. The leadership role was taken on by Danielle Kendrick. The basketball squad of girls was made up by seniors, juniors, and sophomores, each class having two apiece. Seniors Dianna Minnick and Kim Robinson headed this squad that saw their way to the Indiana High School Girls' Basketball Championship at Market Square Arena to lose by one point in the final game.

Minnick commented, "From last summer when we attended camp to the final game at MSA , we were all close friends. Cheerleading is rewarding because you gain friendship and the ability to lead. You have to get people up out of their seats and we did it with the help of a great crowd."

Junior Cindy Higgs said, "I think this was one of our most competitive years on the squad because we were in a lot of contest and did well. All our work paid off."

When asked if the cheerleaders get the recognition they deserve, Mrs. Grenda said, "No, but they should not, they should get a great deal of intrencic awards to know they did something well and helped the team. The job is to give recognition to others not get it." She also went on to say that many girls are amazed on how much work they do with little recognition. If the football team practiced as long as the cheerleaders do, they would quit."

Maybe they didn't do acrobats or make pyramids, but they did cheer and support the teams. The many girls who helped with events were faithful to their job.

The mat maids assisted wrestling meets by scoring, cheering, and distributing ribbons. They also decorated lockers to boost team spirit.

Throughout the year, the girls made money by working the concession stand or holding car washes.

The swim team was supported by the swim maids. Duties included working at swim meets, helping score, and boosting team spirit.

In addition, the soccer maids supported the soccer team. By going to games, the maids gave the team moral support. Decorating lockers and promoting student interest were also included in the job.

Aiding in cheering, the bat maids helped run baseball games. Helping keep score and doing other jobs helped each game run smoothly.

A large club at Warren was the Wrestling Booster Club. Each member paid a one dollar fee. In order to provide fan buses to wrestling meets, members sold pizza and taco kits. The club was comprised of over 100 members.

Announcing, keeping score, and measuring distances were a few of the duties of the GTO's. The Girls' Track Organization attended all home track meets and helped run each meet. Warren Relays required each member to help with the many jobs. The organization was comprised of sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Community benefits from Warren's service clubs

Brain Game
Hi-C
Key Club
Campus Life

Working together to serve the school and the community was an important part of certain clubs. Included was Hi-C, Campus Life, Brain Game, and Key Club. While each club participated in its own activities, they all served the community and brought people together.

Hi-C Club was offered in order to improve the Christian lives of many students. The group was able to gather and have fellowship, Bible study, or prayer. The group was on a voluntary basis, and usually met before school.

Another group which brought students together for fellowship was Campus Life. The club met every Friday morning at 6:30 at Aldersgate Methodist Church for breakfast.

This year, the club alternated weeks, one being regular meeting and the other insight. At a regular meeting, students could sing, play crazy games, or discuss problems of teenage life. Insight was centered around the Christian life and was geared for Christians.

The club sponsored the annuul "Scream in the Dark" project at Halloween time. Campus Life also hosted Superclub meeting, a Rollerthon for club related trips like Florida, and CLAIM (Campus Life Area Insight Meeting).

A smaller group of students participated in Brain Game. These students pulled their knowledge together in preparation for competitions. The team competed against other schools on Channel 13.

Another club that was offered was Key Club. Key Club is a service club for males only. In the fall, the group sold peanuts as a profit making task. In addition, the group served in various capacities throughout the community.

Musicians work for goals

Orchestra
Sym. Band
Concert Band

After long hours of practice, the orchestra, symphonic band, and concert band were ready for the school year. For the band, time was spent in the hot sun preparing for marching season. Fine tuning and preparation were necessary for the orchestra to perform.

The marching band spent time preparing for marching season. During halftime at football games, the faithful marchers dazzled the audience. In addition, the band performed in the Homecoming Parade.

Taking trips was also part of the music department. Some students were honored by playing for President Reagan upon his visit to the Indiana Convention Center.

Throughout the year, both the band and orchestra played at performances. For example, the orchestra performed during the musical Brigadoon.

As usual, students prepared for weeks for the annual solo and ensemble contest. At the contest, students performed pieces on their intrument. Many Warren students received high rating.

With the opening of the Performing Arts Center, many new opportunites opened for musicians. For example, individuals and small groups could rehearse in one of the many sound insulated practice rooms. The new band and orchestra rooms gave each group more space in which to perfect their music.

Throughout the school year, the band and orchestra performed for the student body and community.

The Singing Santas (Windsors) marched on to the Warren Performing Arts Center stage to the sound of ZZ Top and "Sharp Dressed Man" at the Christmas concert. Madrigals got together and dressed up in Medieval costumes and performed at the Madrigal dinner.

All of that and more were part of this year's vocal music department. Madrigals, Trebletones, Chantelles, Windsors, Warrenaires and Crystalaires made up the vocal music department.

The choral groups took part in more than just classroom acticities. All of them were part of productions in the Warren. They not only learned how to sing, but how to perform as well.

The Madrigals took several trips to different community activities to provide the entertainment and to further their singing abilities.

Through these productions the choral groups utilized the Performing Arts Center and made the most of the opportunities offered to them.

"They're (choral groups) structured on an ability basis . . . We place students where we feel that they will reach their highest challenge," he said.

One word, according to Mr. Dunn, that summed up the choral music department was improving. Improving, that is, in numbers, finances, participation and morale.

"(It's) A pleasurable experience, it's fun to sing," Mr. Dunn said. "They (students) will grow in self confidence as they appear before the public. They will build associations with other students that will last a life time."

Junior Isaiah J. Mance, a Windsor member, has been involved in vocal music for four and one half years. "I like to sing a lot. It's fun," he said.

The first and second goals of the vocal music department, according to Mr. Dunn, were to maximize students' singing and to enjoy and to appreciate choral music.

"Third would be to participate in concerts and to carry on the tradition of choral music that has been established at Warren Central," he said.

Superior ratings continue for ensembles, corps, dance

As he rolled over in bed and glanced as the clock, five 'til seven! Seven o'clock rehearsals might not have meant much to most students, but to members of the specialized music groups seven o'clock was the witching hour.

These rehearsals were the foundation for the String Ensemble, Jazz Ensemble, Color Guard, and Dance Line. These students even put up with afternoon rehearsals that lasted up to three hours.

The first performance for the Jazz Ensemble was the Elmhurst Jazz Festival where junior Leander Smalls received a Vibes Solo Award, and Kermit Britt received an Outstanding Trombone Soloist Award. The second performance was at Ball State where the ensemble received second place in sight readings.

Mrs. Bertha Spratt, parent, said, "It was a good experience. It was kind of rough but after awhile it got going and it was alot of fun."

The String Ensemble received first rating in both the District and State Solo-Ensemble contests. They performed at orchestra concerts as well.

The dance line and color guard made up a large part of the band's performance. Co-captains of the dance line were Stephani Thomas and Teresa Vanderbaan. The co-captains for the color guard were Laura Grohowski and Carla Hunter.

Speakers add color to life

Speech Team
Debate Team
Stage Crew NFL

by Richard Lasley

Life is full of color. Trees, birds, and flowers come in a variety of colors. And, by that reasoning, people, being a part of life, are colorful-especially in terms of character and actions. Not many groups were more colorful than Warren's speech and debate teams.

It took a colorful person to get up at 5:00 a.m. on a weekend to argue with a total stranger or look like a fool reciting the works of Monty Python. Yes, that is what speech and debate people did on weekends. They were the loud class of colorful people or members of the National Forensic League.

Warren speakers competed in many different categories, poetry, drama, humorous and impromptu being a few. This year's team was composed mainly of juniors, excelled in such areas. In the NFL speech sectional, Warren speakers captured the humorous and duo championship, and placed high in poetry and oratorical interpretation categories. Two students even made it to the state finals, juniors Richard Lasley and Brian Boykins in humorous and poetry.

On the debate front, things were a little more hectic. While speech people spent their time memorizing a set speech, debaters spent hours doing research and preparing to talk on the spur of the moment. But, debaters were a prime example of the adage, "You sow what you reap." At Honor's Night, debaters Mac Overton, Matt Stevenson, Tom Gunderman, Richard Davis, and Don Brechbuhl were recognized for their efforts. Seniors Dennis Papenmeier and Kris Swenson received the distinguished Kiwanis Award.

The big news, however, was the retirement of Mrs. Sue Ludwig. During the eight year stretch as coach, Ludwig's teams have received second through eighth place in state meets. Along with that distinction, Mrs. Ludwig took her team to four national competition's. In addition, the team was the only Indiana team to get in the top 16 at the Northwestern Tournament and the Tournament of Champions.

"I know I'm going to miss it. I'm going to miss the kids more than anything," said Mrs. Ludwig.

If NFL members were the loud type of colorful people, then Stage Crew members, although just as busy, were the silent type of colorful people.

"Stage Crew is an informal group of students who just come over after school and learn to operate the equipment in the theater," said sponsor Mr. J. Ramsey Gibson.

In the 1983-84 school year the crew had the opportunity to "crew" the national touring of Pirates of Penzance, a French puppet company, and 20 to 30 other events throughout the school year.

Home Ec Club
Car Club

Hobbies were a special part of the students lives at Warren. Whether it was sewing or building models, hobbies were part of the daily routine. Specifically at Warren, students could participate in hobby related clubs. Among the list offered were Home Ec Club and Car Club.

The Home Ec Club, which was sponsored by Mrs. Arlene Vaughn, helped interested students improve their culinary talents. Throughout the year, the group met on a regular basis. Besides cooking, the group also investigated sewing.

Home Ec Club gave students a chance to further study the course. For some members, the club was a hobby, but for others it was the foundation of a future career.

Another club that was offered was Car Club. Under the direction of Mr. Passwater, the group was mainly comprised of students from the auto body shop.

The highlight of the year was the annual Kar Kraft Show. The club sponsored event was held during senior week. Students were dismissed from school to view Warren's finest vehicles. For the car owner's, preparation for the show took long hours.

Basically, both Home Ec Club and Car Club helped students relax and look to related careers.

Foreign food, activities create large memberships

by Beth Topliffe

Whether it was international I food or international games, the foreign language clubs boasted large memberships and many activities.

The Spanish Club had one of the largest memberships and as a result had a long list of activities including eating at Rosa Corona's and collecting food and clothing for needy Hispanic families in the community. However, this large membership was a little deceiving. Many members did not participate in the club activities.

Senior Claude Hawkins, Spanish club co-president, said, "I think tha we could have had a little more involvement."

The German Club was also an active club. They celebrated German holidays, had a continental breakfast, and had a toy drive for children at the Guardian Home.

Mrs. Carla Harman, German Club sponsor, felt that the A-B activity set up was good. She said, "They have put a lot of thought into the scheduling of clubs."

Both Mrs. Harman and Mrs. Beth Wolff, Spanish Club sponsor, felt that the success of a club depended largely on its officers.

Mrs. Harman said, "I think a lot of it depends on the strength of the officers. My time can't always be spent doing all of the running around."

The French Club and the Latin Club were also a strong part of the foreign language clubs. The Latin Club hosted the annual slave sale during senior week. This event was a success in two ways. It helped to raise funds for the Latin club, and it was fun for the students who participated.

The French club did quite a bit of eating. They went to Chez Jean restuarant, had a fondue party, and they celebrated Mardi Gras with a party at school.

All of these events and activities helped to increase a student's knowledge of the country he was studying as well as make the year a little more enjoyable.

Media club, conservation corps meet student needs

by Amy Wright and Julie Mattingly

Among the many clubs at Warren, many allowed students to pursue individual interests. Included in the schedule of clubs for the school year were Media Club, Computer Club, and Metropolitan Conservation Corps.

With Andrea Rogers as president of the Media Club, the group participated in many activities throughout the school year. The club sponsored two sales, the calendar poster sale, and the sale of Warrior license plates.

In addition to the sales that the group sponsored, the club hosted a booth at Homefest.

In the spring, the club took two field trips downtown. Included was a trip to the main public library and to the studios of Channel 13.

On club days, the group assemble for business and then conducted scavenger hunts in the library. Each participant used reference materials to find items on their list during the hunt.

National Library Week was held April 8-14. During the time, the club sponsored several activities in the Media Center for the benefit of the student body.

Another club available was the Computer Club. Junior Scott Willits was president of the club. The club, directed by Mr. Robert Coble, spent most of their time programming and working on computers.

For the students who enjoy the outdoors, the Metropolitan Conservation Corps was available. Mr. Bruce James led the group with help from president Steve Cutshaw.

Among the activities that the group participated in were caving, camping, rappelling, backpacking, and canoeing.

In addition to the outdoor pleasures, the group was concerned with the conservation of American resources and ecology. Topics for discussion and investigation included wildlife preservation and drinking and driving.

Career clubs succeed

by Chad Smith

Wit the intention of allowing students to gain intensified study in certain professions, Warren Central's preprofessional clubs have gradually become a popular part of Warren Central and Walker Career Center.

Every year, these clubs expand and this year was no exception. In the case of the Nursing Club, the group held one of the largest service projects of the entire year: a blood drive.

Of the 182 people scheduled to donate blood to the Central Indiana Blood Center (CIBC) on Feb. 23, 157 actually donated blood.

Nurse Ramer said, "I believe it was another successful drive. The kids were more into giving a human gift." In a March issue of The Owl, she added, "I think it comes close to a duty for a helathy person to donate blood."

Besides the blood drive, the club was also active in the Governor's Health Fair Booth on Wash you hands-drown a germ, the documentary Update on Hospital Nursings at Comunity Hospital, and a tour/fieldtrip to the Indiana Central School of Nursing.

Every year at Warren, a major highlight is the class struggles when competing to construct the largest spirit chains. As usual, the event was sponsored by the OEA Data Processing Lab this year and all the profits were donated to the Special Olympics.

The OEA Data Processing Lab participated in an almost endless list of activities, but a few of their major projects included: a Homecoming float, the American Heart Association Jump Rope Competition, an OEA week, several officer leadership workshops, a field trip to Merchants Bank and Melvin Simon Associates, and a State and National Leadership Conference.

Gaining insight on the lives and occupations of accountants and secretaries, the OEA Accounting Lab and Secretarial Lab finished another successful year. Part of their success was due to their annual fund raiser: To Your Door Sales Kits.

Sponsoring DECA for the first year by himself, Mr. Tim Armstrong replaced retired sponsor Mr. Shirley Atkins. Like the OEA clubs, DECA also won many awards and honors in district and state competitions.

Career clubs add life

Among the many career related clubs at Warren, FFA, HERO Child Care, and HERO Restaurant were offered to interested students. Most of these clubs had a related class such as child care or horticulture.

FFA, Future Farmers of America, was sponsored by Mr. Pitts. Members of the club were involved in the horticulture program at the Walker Career Center. Students were able to learn about raising and caring for plants and flowers. During Homecoming, the group sponsored a booth at Homefest. At the booth, students made floral arrangements which were sold.

Also offered at the Career Center was child care. HERO club was closely linked to the class. Members of the club were students in the class. As a club, they sponsored a float in the Homecoming Parade. Members were given the opportunity to have direct involvement with children. Sponsor of the club was Ms. Yarborough who also taught the class.

HERO also had a club for restaurant students. The members of the club worked in the Threshold restaurant at the Walker Career Center. Mrs. Janet Morris was the new sponsor of the club for the year. Student learned restaurant management and other aspects like cooking and waiting on tables.

With class involvement, these clubs were able to further the education of students in each specified field.

Leading roles in the act were played by every one of us. We all had a role. These roles included being a star athlete and star fans. They included the outstanding pupils and the class clowns. These people and all others were what it took to continue achieving excellence. We were all depended on to keep the clockwork running smoothly. Afterall it takes quite a bit of work to achieve excellence and keep it that way. We all became caught. W.A.'s acts show little class

By Mike Melloh

Every year, the senior class has made up their minds to be the "best" class and the "rowdiest class."

The class of '84 was no different. "The class with class" was adopted as the senior class theme. However, they used a different name when they spray painted or committed other acts of vandalism in order to celebrate their senior year.

The W.A.'s, which stands for wild asses, were responsible for vandalism on street signs, portable outhouses, junior highs, and gas stations.

Not only was the administration upset with the vandalism, but they refused to accept the W.A.'s as a class theme, because of its meaning.

As a result of the administration's firm stand, strict measures were used on those people suspected of being a W.A. At one particular pep session several students displayed a sign promoting the W.A.'s and were consequently taken to the dean's office.

This form of discipline caused great unrest among the seniors who saw nothing wrong with displaying W.A. signs.

"I see nothing wrong in displaying signs. It's not vandalism, it's just a way of expressing senior enthusiasm," commented one senior girl.

Although none of the W.A.'s were caught in the act of vandalizing, they chose to cut down on the amount of vandalizing as the year progressed.

About graduation time, some seniors were disciplined and asked to make restitution for damages done.

What it boiled down to was a difference of opinion. The administration saw the W.A.'s acts as vandalism, and disrespect for private property. The W.A.'s just saw it as a way of celebrating.

Cheating, does everyone do it?

By Gerri Curtis

The quiz is on the desk, everyone's eyes are looking at it like it is the plague.

"A pop-quiz, who does she think she is?"

"I didn't have time to read this, I had to do other things."

"Like we are really supposed to know this stuff. What does she think we are, brains or something?"

These are a few of the lines that some students utter before a test or a quiz that they were unprepared for. The next step was to find the true "brain" in the class and bribe him into giving you the answers to the test.

"I couldn't cheat on a big test or anything, but an occasional 'What's the answer?' on homework doesn't hurt," said sophomore Gary Farson.

"In some classes it is easy to cheat, but some teachers are unfair and let their pets cheat, but tear up other student's papers," said one junior.

Some students resorted to cheating as the only way to pass a class, but good study habits could have been the remedy.

"Too many people don't budget their time and find themselves trapped when they hit a deadline, the only answer is cheating," said another junior.

Geometry and algebra teacher Mr. William Henke said, "Students start cheating in school and get away with it, they keep doing it as they get older and when they get caught they pay the price."

People of all ages will admit to having cheated sometime in their life, but some of them will also tell a story of how they got caught.

Indianapds's new T.V. station

By Gerri Curtis

For a long time, Indianapolis residents thought that the city has chosen a new spelling...Indianapds. For Indianapolis received a new television station in 1984. WPDS, Channel 59, went on the air in February after being delayed by the winter weather of December.

The station began preparation in April 1983. First preparations involved obtaining a broadcasting license from the Federal Communications Corporation (FCC), and sending equipment orders, according to John Newcomb, station manager.

The call letters "PDS" came from the names of the people that started the station: Ron Palmera, Chris Duffy, and Mel and Herb Simon and Associates.

Ron Palmera was on the Board of Directors of USA Communications and is also the president of Anacomp, a large computer software company in Carmel.

Chris Duffy, the former general manager of Channel 13, who left Channel 13 in 1982, works for Anacomp.

Mel and Herb Simon and Associates were the owners of the Pacers and several shopping centers around Indiana.

The station was funded mainly by Anacomp and Simon and Associates.

Channel 59 offered mainly older shows such as Batman, Carol Burnett, Buck Rogers, and the Twilight Zone. WPDS also had its share of original shows. These included Peggy's 59er Diner, Rock Box, and an aerobics show.

The risk of getting a tan

By Marths Fisse

Sun worshippers, during the past summer vacation great care should have been taken when soaking up those sunbeams. A tan may look terrific, but trouble may be ahead.

In past years people have become aware of the problems caused by overexposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays. Some of the problems are premature aging of the skin, sunburn and even cancer. Preventative measures are essential. Skin should be protected at all times when it is exposed to the sun. This holds true even if the skin is already tanned. Umbrellas and hats aid protection, but more importantly a sunblock or sunscreen should be used.

Girls could use makeup with a built in sunscreen. In addition, Coppertone markets a product called For Faces Only which consists of a water-based, non-greasy formula with sunscreen and moisturizer which can be used under makeup.

Sunscreens come with a SPF (sun protection factor) number. The lowest is two and the highest is 15. SPF 15 is the strongest sunblock. To determine the length of time a product will offer protection, the SPF number is multiplied by the number of minutes that a person can safely be exposed to the sun without protection.

Senior Andy Kanzler said, "I use a 4 sunscreeen 4, but only at the beginning of the summer."

Skin can burn as badly on cloudy and hazy days as on sunny ones. Due to reflection, skin burns more easily on the beach or near water.

Senior Lori Castetter said, "When it is cloudy outside, I lay on a silver blanket."

Olympics: Spirit/Politics

By Billy Cook

With the Americans boycotting the 1980 Olympics for political reasons, it was time for the Americans to show their power as the 1984 Summer Olympics were held in Los Angeles, California. But in May it was announced that the Russians would do the boycotting this year.

In the Winter Olympics held in Sarajevo, Yugislovia earlier this year, the United States team finished fifth in the medal standings with eight, seventeen behind the Soviet Union, who had 25.

On the last day of competition, it was time for the Americans to shine in the Slalom ski race. For the first time in American history, the U.S. captured the Slalom with Phil Mahres taking the gold medal, while his brother Steve, finished second with the silver medal. Also during the Olympics, American Bill Johnson won the Alpine ski race for the first time in the 48 years of the existance of the event.

Scott Hamilton contributed a gold medal after his astonishing performance in figure skating.

During the pairs figure skating, Americans Kitty and Peter Carruthers finished second behind the team from the Soviet Union. As the summer games opened, names like Carl Lewis and Billy Olson appeared at the Olympics. In the World University games, Carl won three gold medals; which included the 100 meter dash,the long jump and,the 4x100 meter relay team that set a new world record. This summer he went for Jesse Owens record of three gold medals in the Olympics.

In May it was announced that the Russians would not compete in the Los Angeles games. Only time would tell if the spirit of the Olympics will be lost to intense political rivalry.

Siblings: Enemies/Pals

By Beth Topliffe and Sylvia Warren

John and Jane Doe walked into the building together. The argument they had been engaged in when they had left the house was still going strong. Out of the corner of his eye, John spotted his best buddy and took off leaving Jane in a frustrated state.

No, they are not a couple fighting over some trivial marital problem but brother and sister simply going to school together.

To sophomore Terri Annest, the arguing that she and her brother,senior Mark Annest, do was a disadvantage of going to school with him.

"We aren't used to being around each other this often," she said.

Sophomore Missy Godby, a twin, said, "If I need money or something, I can ask Michelle for some or if I forget to tell my mom I'm going to stay after school, she could tell her when she got home."

Of course, all brothers and sisters agreed that the main advantages of going to schoool together were to borrow money and to help each other with homework.

"They can help each other with work at home, can compete on the same teams together instead of against each other. They (brothers and sisters) can help you understand what to expect from teachers they had or occurances in school that have already happened to them," stated senior Butch Thomas.

Butch and his brother Vince are fraternal twins. This can often pose problems. For example, teachers often get twins mixed up, and in many instances expect twins to be exactly alike.

"People usually seem to think we're two alike people and like the same things, but they're wrong!" commented Vince.

No place like city/farm home

By Richard Lasley

It is 6 a.m. Outside the sun is just beginning to peek out behind the big red barn across the field among the farms of Warren Township.

You don't need an alarm clock; a rooster perched on a fence just outside your bedroom window tells you that another day has just begun. Once you get out of the house, the clean cool air refreshes your lungs. Things are peaceful and quiet here in your neck of the woods. Ahhh, life in the country.

There are other assets. As junior country bumpkin Chad Smith said,"There aren't as many neighbors. There's more privacy. With neighbors, you have to be careful what you do. It makes you respect nature too."

Now just wait a minute! A person can't take the stars ,the quiet, and the wholesomeness for too long (not to mention that stupid rooster that wakes you up at those inhumane hours.) Man does not live on country air alone. Go on, admit it. You miss living amongst the hustle and bustle, the movies, the wild concerts and other city hot spots. Welcome former rural dweller to the urban life.

In the words of eastern downtown Indy slick, junior Richard Lasley, "I know most people talk about the pollution and high crime of the city, but I couldn't take not living in the fast lane, so to speak."

Regardless of where you live, there is just one thing you should remember. The country has its fresh air, but it also has its cow manure. On the other hand, the city has its Clowes Hall and Market Square Arena, but it also has its weirdos and potholes.

As a little girl named Dorothy from Kansas once said, "There's no place like home."

Teen years more stressful

By Troy Vaughn

Ten years ago the word stress was meaningless in the vocabulary of most teenagers. But lately the word is as common as peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

Stress problems exist with all ages, sexes, races, and origins. However, stress is becoming more common among teens as they encounter school problems, broken homes, growing pains, dating, drugs, employment pressures and other anxiety factors.

"I sometimes worry too much. With school, sports, and a job, I sometime get pretty tangled up in things,"said senior Tim Rudisill.

Senior Michelle Rowe ommented, "It's really hard to keep up with everything. I'm always under some kind of stress."

Stress can lead to many other problems. Suicide among teens in America is a major problem. The reason for this is that some teens can not cope with the stress that they had to live with. Stress could also lead to extremely serious illnesses such as hypertension, heart disease, strokes, kidney failure, ulcers, and even the common cold.

There are many things a person can do if they are under some kind of stress. First: SLOW DOWN. A person will realize that he feels better about things. Second: Plan ahead. Don't wait until the last minute to start something. Third: Professional counselors could be called in to help. At Warren a pastoral counseling service could help along with many area churches, hospitals, or clinics.

Don't mess around with stress. You may beat it now, but in the long run it will catch up with you!

The gift of life

By Michelle Watts

"If I hadn't had blood, I would have been scared. I needed between three and four pints," said junior Dawn Moore prior to Warren's successful blood drive.

Dawn's thyroid had to be removed; thus, she received blood during her operation.

Thursday, Feb. 23, 182 people were scheduled to donate blood at the Central Indiana Blood Center's drive located at Warren Central, but only 157 actually donated blood.

Rumor had it that many students became ill after donating blood, but according to nurse Winn Ramer only five or six people had an adverse reaction. She stated that this is not uncommon, and that feeling faint afterward is only normal. She also said that 25 people were turned away because of low weight, medication, colds, athletic events, etc.

A total of 130 pints of blood were donated, up from last year, and an excellent response, according to Mrs. Ramer.

"I believe it's another successful drive. The kids were more into giving a human gift," she said.

For 24 years government teacher Mr. Ron Roach has been donating blood. He began when Warren Township held a blood drive for the members of the Warren Education Association. Last year Mr. Roach became a member of the Gallon Club. This year will be the last year Mr. Roach will donate as a teacher, as he is retiring at the end of the school year.

I feel relieved that I have been able to give," Mr. Roach said. "I've hopefully done something to help someone. We're really obligated to help people, if we're healthy."

Benefit game success for trust fund

By Debbie Harner

During the night of March 17, a dear friend and teacher to Warren Central and the Walker Career Center passed away suddenly. This friend was Mr. Wayne White who instructed the vocational printing classes in the Career Center.

In order to raise money for the trust fund that was set up for his surviving three children, the PTSA presented the Wayne White Benefit Basketball Game.

Presented on Monday evening of May 7, the Wayne White Benefit Game got underway as the senior boys took on the mens' faculty in the township. After playing aggressively for a non-stop 10 minute quarter, it was then time to bring on a grueling match up of the senior girls verses the womens' faculty. This match up was quite a fight to the end due to the talent on both side.

On the womens' side, the talent of the girls' varsity basketball coach Sue Parrish teamed up with her assistant coach Barbara Guhl and others to tackle the senior girls. However, the talent did not stop there for the women had All-Star player Stephanie Blake and senior basketball players Stacy Rathbun and Kim Koonce. to run up against.

The boys' contest was about the same. The men's faculty had basketball coach Mike Copper and coaches throughout the elementary and junior highs also. Several players on the varsity basketball squad were on the floor for the senior boys.

At the end of two alternating quarters, each team retired for a half-time strategy talk and resting time, with the emphasis on resting time.

Entertaining spectators, English teacher Marianne Rhinesmith's danceline performed a song and dance routine along with members of the Trebletones.

Throughout the night, announcers Thom Feit, drama instructor, and English Department Chairman Myles Eley called several ticket numbers for door prizes.

Returning from the half-time break, the men's faculty and the senior boys' paired back up. Several times it was not unusual to see the faculty or the boys lying on the gymnasium floor due to the aggressive playing going on. Senior player Brent Anderson would frequently run through the gym tossing handfuls of candy to the crowd.

When the clock ran down to zero, it was once again time for another quarter for the ladies. Adding an extra attraction to these quarters, seniors Brian Gregory and Brent Anderson dressed up as cheerleaders to cheer on the senior girls.

Wrapping up four quarters of play for each group, a dead tie resulted in the boys game with a final 62 point score and the senior girls triumphed over the womens' faculty.

Commenting on the game, senior Shawn Sebert said, "Everyone had a good time and it was for a good cause. It was worth it!"

Showing that the benefit game was a success, a total of $1,559.25 was raised for the trust fund.

Team members of the womens' faculty and the senior girls' team await the rebound while also helping to earn money for Mr. White's children's trust fund.

Taking a breather from the game, the Warren Central Chicken portrayed by Mrs. Dianne Burnett stands talking to others while Principal Ernest Medcalfe looks on.

Retrieving the basketball from another teacher's lay up, Mr. Jim Inman warms up for the basketball game with the senior boys.

Kaupke leaves, Light comes

By Julie Mattingly

The resignation of Dr. Donn V. Kaupke as superintendent of Warren Township schools ended up being what some might call a "Charge to the Light Brigade," as he was replaced by Dr. John Light, new superintendent.

Dr. Kaupke was responsible for the implementation of the desegregation court order, the initiation of a gifted program, and the building of the performing arts center, among other projects.

His resignation was based on personal reasons.

"The decision to resign was something I agonized about for six weeks. It was a decision based on personal reasons, not based on the great people here in Warren Township. I enjoyed my seven years," Dr. Kaupke said, upon leaving.

During the period between Dr. Kaupke's resignation and the appointment of the new superintendent, Mr. H. Lloyd Cooper, director of secondary education, served as acting superintendent.

Dr. John Light, Warren's new chief administrator, was formerly superintendent of the Fayette County School Corporation in Connersville, Indiana. Dr. Light was previously principal at Lakeside Elementary School in Warren Township and left that position to pursue his studies at Ball State University.

With the leaving of Dr. Kaupke and the coming of Dr. Light, it will be a new "charge of the Light brigade."

Three Warren teachers retire

"I think they see me as fair...easy to talk to...and honest."
Barbara Huston

By Kelly Hartman

Completing her 26th year of teaching, 19 of those years at Warren, Mrs. Barbara Huston of the Physical Education Department will be retiring this year.

Being fair to all students and trying to get along with each one whether you particularly like them or not, are characteristics of an "ideal" teacher, according to Mrs. Huston.

The two major highlights of her career were her participation in the Fall Creek Follies where she could "show off," she said humorously, and in 1980 when she received a plaque from the Red Cross for Outstanding Volunteer in Aquatics.

Mrs. Huston is also a Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation PR), water safety and first aid instructor for the Red Cross. She would like to continue to teach swimming part-time somewhere even after retirement.

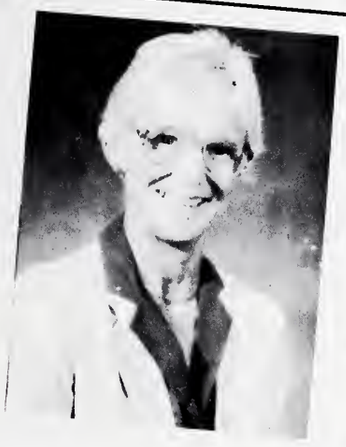
If she were principal of a school and could make any changes, "I would have longer passing periods between classes, extend lunch periods and allow students to go off campus for lunch," she said.

"Kids are kids," Mrs. Huston said implying that their attitudes haven't canged much since the beginning of her career. She does feel however, that the larger numbers of students per class make it tougher to teach.

After seeing more emphasis put on physical education through the years, Mrs. Huston is retiring because of "teacher burnout," which she said is similar to "senioritis."

Noting that she will miss her students the most, one of the things she looks forward to is "playing with my grandson."

Mrs. Barbara Huston will retire from the Physical Education department after 26 years of teaching.



"I have positive expressions toward students and will cherish them forever." Ronald Roach

After teaching 26 and a half years in the Social Studies Department and coaching football 15 of those year, the educating career of Mr. Ronald Roach will come to a close with retirement this year.

Claiming to have lost his enthusiasm toward teaching, Mr. Roach feels his time could be better spent doing something else. "I've had many enjoyable experiences coaching and teaching here at Warren," he said.

One of the aspects he'll miss most about teaching is the young people he has "had the pleasure of working with."

"They help keep me young," he said.

Knowing what he knows now, if Mr. Roach could start over, he said, "I couldn't have done better." Both the good and bad aspects of teaching proved, to him, to be "part of the job."

Watching young people mature, develop character, and become an integral part of the community has highlighted his career along with some enjoyable memories.

The only change he would make if he could is in getting the attention of the students. He would implement this by having stronger attendance and tardy policies. He would also like to see parents do more in working as a team with the school to educate young people.

Mr. Roach thinks his students see him as quite different and even those who don't like him, do respect him.

Looking forward to retirement while he still has good health, Mr. Roach doesn't really have any definite plans, but he is anxious to retire.

"I'll miss my room...because it is like my home."
Marjorie Ginther

Mrs. Marjorie Ginther, who has been an educator for 19 years, her latter 13 at Warren teaching Biology, will also be retiring.

"I liked the study," she said, referring that she'll miss the "students and the books" the most.

She also said that if she could start over again, she wouldn't change a thing. The only major change that Mrs. Ginther feels she has witnessed is that students don't seem as interested in excelling scholastically as they used to be.

Working with teachers, discussing ways to make the department better and promoting science are all good memories for her. She went on to say, "We really worked together to develop the biology program and that was important to me."

How do her students see her? "I think they believe I like teaching and that I like each student. They know I want them to do well," she said.

According to Mrs. Ginther, to be a good teacher, "You must enjoy the subject and the students; you have to be a true optimist."

"My husband is retiring too and I want to be free to go and see my family and pursue my hobbies, " Mrs.Ginther said. Her hobbies include reading mysteries, pursuing outdoor biology and antiques.

"I may even go back to school and study outdoor biology," she said.

"I've had the opportunity to see young people develop into those who are concerned about themselves and have become socially conscious about others."

Mrs. Marjorie Ginther will retire after 19 years of teaching.

Support your local merchants

The Owl would like to thank all the merchants who support Warren Central students and their activities.

We particularly want to thank those merchants who made it possible for us to continue to publish an active student press.

Support your local merchants. Many of them hire Warren Central students and graduates and they also provide the tax base for our school district.

Let them know when you enter their store that you saw their ads and you appreciate their business.

The Owl and Wigwam staff thank you.

Looking like a man from outer space, football coach Dean Carbone and coach Tony Burchett watch the action of the Marion County champs.

Student Council pres Brent Anderson played the role of the super rock star in the Follies.

Starring Roles

Although it was late summer before students had a chance watch U.S. athletes winning gold medals, excellence was the name of the game all year at Warren.

In a cast of thousands, well at least a couple of thousand, only a few actually won the ribbons or trophies, but many participated in some way to successful acts.

For teams to be successful, it took bleachers and gyms full of fans. For teachers to be successful it took rooms of supportive, eager students. For schools to win awards, it took hallways fulls of caring teenagers working toward common goals.

Each in their own way played a Starring Role.

Acknowledgements

The 1984 Wigwam was published by Herff-Jones Yearbooks of Marceline, Missouri.

The staff would like to extend thanks to the following people for their encouragemen and assistance: Mr. Larry Glaze, our friend and Herff-Jones representative; Mr. Edward Bowers of Tower Studio, our official yearbook photographer; and Mr. Ernest Medcalfe, principal of Warren Central.

The 1983 Wigwam was a National Scholastic Press Association All Columbian Award Winner, and received several Harvey awards from the Indiana High School Press Association.

Thanks to all members of the Publications Staff: Stephanie Blake, Susie Chappell, Billy Cook, Rodney Cork, Gerri Curtis, Angie Duffer, Martha Fisse, Debbie Harner, Kelly Hartman, Angel Knapp, Richard Lasley, Julie Mattingly, Shaun McDonald, Mike Melloh, Lori Neff, Deena Orr, Kathi Pfluger, Carol Simons, Cathy Smith, Josie Soliven, Troy Vaughn, Kris Wanczyk, Sylvia Warren, Michelle Watts, and all the journalism students who devoted their time.

This book would not have been possible without the leadership and dedication of the Wigwam editors: Amy Wright, Beth Topliffe, and Ann Peat.

A special thanks goes to Debbie Harner, Gerri Curtis, Richard Lasley, Susie Chappell, Chad Smith, and Troy Vaughn for their help and encouragement which they offered toward the completion of the book.

Without the constant leadership, dedication, and help of Mrs. Wilma Taylor, this book would not have been completed. Mrs. Taylor, who guided the staff through thick and thin, devoted free time and most of her summer to this book.

Thank you to all,
Amy Wright, Editor

The Wigwam is a member of NSPA, CSPA, and the Indiana High School Press Association.

Quill & Scroll members are recognized their scholastic excellence and contibutions to Warren publications, such as the Wigwam.

Quill & Scroll members contributed many hours to the production of this year's Wigwam. Nine of the 13 members shown intend to pursue a journalism interest at the college or university level.

Caught in the Act of long jumping, this track member is observed by teacher Frak Tardy and a GTO member.

Madrigal Dinner participants toast each other during the traditional dinner.

Champion wrestlers are Greg Montgomery, David Bridgeforth and Scott Ellis. David was the champion in his division, while Greg and Scott were in runner-up position.

Final act receives support from all

For the seniors the end was something that couldn't happen soon enough, but it was sad too. After being part of the act as a group for so long, there was a nervous feeling about 'going solo.'

It had been a year to remember. The tears as the girls basketball team lost the State Championshlip by just one point in overtime...a free vacation due to a transformer fire...the President's visit...all became a part of the program notes tucked away in memories.

Some of the spring scenes were new to Warren, like an increase in fights and vandalism, which quickly brought firm action from the administration and a new awareness of the necessity to get along, even just when walking through crowded halls.

The comedy of spring vacation fun turned to the mask of tragedy as Walker Career Center printing instructor Wayne White passed away suddenly, leaving a terrible sense of loss to family and friends. Then the act became pure class when the PTSA sponsored a faculty/student basketball game which raised over $5000 for Mr. White's children.

Spotlighting our successes and sharing our sorrows, our show went on.

A new superintendent, Dr. John LIght, came and a new school board president, John Norman, was elected. Old staff members left. New ones were hired.

There was a new year to look forward to. The old show was one for the record now. It was an Act to remember.

As part of their performance, senior Karen Kennedy and junior Kim Adaway march while playing the opening song.

Stressing a point to her class Mrs. Marjorie Ginther teaches biology during her last year of teaching.

As things heat up junior Kelly Hartman pokes her head through her costume at the Girls' State Basketball Championship.

All become caught as curtains close

Senior Olympics came and so did the shaving cream. No rules could have prevented the seniors from having their style of fun. It might have been known as a clown act, but it made winning and losing a laughing experience.

The sunny days of Senior Week soon faded into the pitter- patter of rain on the roof of the Cattle Barn as seniors lined up for commencement at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

However dreary outside, the excitement indoors kept growing. No unhappy acts marred the dignity of the final scene for Warren seniors as it did for some other Indianapolis area schools. The Class with Class graduated in style.

Back at the high school in the next week, the sophomores and juniors became "antsy" as finals came and went. They found it difficult to concentrate as the sun shone through classroom windows beckoning them to summer fun.

With the seniors gone, the parking lot and halls seemed empty, leaving juniors with a strange new feeling of superiority.

This was the final act for 1984. It was the finale. Some would have cast parties afterward, but they wouldn't be the same without everyone present.

Especially the Warrior band found their act changed drastically with the surprise resignation of leader Jim Butz, who went to rival Ben Davis High School.

It was a year of opening scenes and closing curtains. And, whether we liked it or not, we were all Caught in the Act.

Even though Michael Jackson failed to show at the Hoosier Dome, we still had our memories of Freddie Bell's Jackson imitation.

Stressing the academic scene, seniors Kevin Porter, Stefan Waiss, Steve FEndel and Lauri Jilg carry out their frequency physics experiment.

Principal Ernest Medcalfe smiles as he shares the success of the wrestling team with the student body at the spring sports pep session.
